

Mary McNaughton is valedictorian

Mary McNaughton

Mary McNaughton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. McNaughton, 15 Marie Drive, has been named valedictorian of the Wilmington High School graduating class of 1983. She has been a member and officer of various honor societies and student government and has also won an outstanding achievement plaque for academics. She plans to be a pre-med major at Holy Cross University in the fall.

The salutatorian is Karen Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rowe, 27 Lawrence St. Her academic achievements include membership in various honor societies and two outstanding achievement plaques. She will attend the University of Massachusetts in the fall and major in psychology.

Mary Beth Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn, 522 Woburn St., has been named essayist. She has been a member of various honor societies, as well as the string orchestra. She received two plaques for outstanding academic achievement and also earned the Outstanding Young Business Woman award from Junior Achievement. She will study electrical engineering at Tufts University in the fall.

Other graduates ranked in the top ten are: Kimberly Bennett, Marjorie Campbell, Jannie Wolff, Joseph Pelletier, Deborah Zambarnardi, Deborah Mottolo and Lisa Rudnicki.

Graduation ceremonies will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. on the football field at the High School. In case of rain, it will be in the Shriners' Auditorium.

Finishing touch

Landscaper Bruce Allgrove planted shrubs at the John Fullerton Memorial at Silver Lake on Friday. The finishing touch was the spreading of bark mulch, donated by Bob Engel. The Fullerton Memorial will be dedicated on Saturday morning. A parade will leave the Glen Road School at 11 a.m., and proceed to the memorial by way of Glen Road, Main Street and Grove Avenue.

Dukakis gives housing commitment

Karen Rowe

Governor Michael Dukakis has been quoted as saying there is no reason why a town of Wilmington's size should have only 40 units of housing for the elderly.

In a meeting with Wilmington officials Tuesday, the governor gave a commitment to providing more housing for Wilmington, according to Rep. James R. Miceli. Taking part in the meeting were Daniel Ballou, Jr., chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, housing authority members Daniel Gillis, William Strob and Melvin Keough, and Secretary of Communities and Development Amy Anthony.

In the discussion, Mrs. Anthony said that the town's application for a Small Cities Block Grant was turned down because it did not involve any state commitment to maintain the units.

Official Map variances granted

Four appeals were granted by the Wilmington Board of Appeals during the 1st part of May, allowing the construction of homes on streets or ways that are not on the Official Map of Wilmington. Homes built on such streets must have, as a part of the construction, a street built to specified conditions, with six inches of gravel and two courses of bituminous concrete pavement, or with two layers of bituminous gravel, laid as specified and a final double coat of bitumen and sand cover.

All the appeals were granted on May 24.

Ervyl Stewart, 95 Middlesex Avenue was granted permission to construct a single family home on a way known as Plymouth Avenue.

Clifton A. Hall, Bernstein Road, was granted permission to construct a single family home on a way known as Lee Street.

Chester A. and Valerie W. Hall, Bernstein Road, were granted permission to build a single family home on a way known as Sumner Street.

Earl Hupper, 137 West Street, was granted permission to construct a single family home on an extension of Nickerson Avenue. This appeal is in addition to the proceedings Mr. Hupper has at this time with the planning board of Wilmington.

In additional action, Richard Stuart was granted permission to construct a home on property located on Oakwood Road, property having insufficient depth and area.

Concert Tuesday

Wilmington's summer concert season opens on Tuesday evening, June 7, when "Country Limited" will play on the bandstand on the Common. The concert will run from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Rain date is Thursday, June 9.

Wet walking It rained on their parade, but these Brownie Girl Scouts — and everyone else — marched anyway. Memorial Day exercises were held in spite of a downpour.

Boy Scouts hold recruiting night

The Greater Lowell Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold a Tewksbury Townwide "Spring Recruiting Night" for Cub and Boy Scouts on Wednesday, June 1 from 7 to 9 at the South Tewksbury Methodist Church, Main St., Tewksbury. All parents and boys who are interested in the Cub, Scout and Tiger Cub programs are invited to attend.

Scouting is designed to meet the needs of boys aged 7 to 17. Boys who will be entering grade three are particularly encouraged to attend and register at the Spring Recruiting Night, so they will be ready to start in the fall.

Boys and parents will learn about the many things that Scouting has to offer, which include learning, crafts, outdoor activities, citizenship, special events and most importantly, fun. Scouting is a family fun and learning program for boys.

The new and exciting Tiger Cub program is designed to meet the needs of boys entering grade two or who are 7 years old.

Also, at Spring Recruiting Night, parents and boys will have an opportunity to meet unit leaders and council representatives. Packs and troops will have displays to share and observe. The Cub and Scout program in Tewksbury is sponsored by local institutions and organizations in four packs and five troops. These units make a significant contribution to the youth and their families in the community.

It is important to note that parents must be present to register a boy. For more information call the Scout Office.

Kelliher graduates from Air Force Academy

Robert J. Kelliher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kelliher of Kent Street, Tewksbury, was commissioned as second lieutenant upon graduation June 1 from the U.S. Air Force academy, Colorado Springs, Colorado and awarded a bachelor's degree in engineering mechanics.

The academy is a four year educational institution graduating men and women to serve as career Air Force officers. In addition to military training, the academy offers athletics and an academic curriculum which includes basic and engineering sciences, social sciences and the humanities.

He is a 1978 graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School.

A wet day, a great parade

The Wilmington Memorial Day parade was everything that a parade should be — except dry. If nothing else, the decision to hold the parade in the rain could be called "surprising."

Wet as the day may have been, the Memorial Day observances were the subject of some very favorable comments on Tuesday, after people had a chance to dry off.

One marcher said it was very, very pleasing to see people lined up along the parade route. There were very few people on Main Street, but people were lined up "four and five deep" by the high school.

One other person said that it was great, just to be able to choose whether to hold an umbrella or a flag and observe such a ceremony. She was thankful to be in a free country, and in a town such as Wilmington.

The marchers and spectators, all equally wet, were also equally dedicated in their participation. If anything, the bad weather added an exclamation point of sincerity to the spirit of the ceremonies. It was if someone had said, "These men have not died in vain, and we're willing to come out in the pouring rain to commemorate them!"

Amen.

Honoring Vietnam veterans

On Saturday, Wilmington will dedicate its second memorial to a serviceman killed in Vietnam. The John Fullerton Memorial at Silver Lake is made from Wilmington granite, and incorporates a piece of black granite from the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C. The Fullerton Memorial is the first such memorial to use a piece of granite from the national memorial.

Saturday will serve as a special day to honor the spirit of John Fullerton. The day will also serve as one of saying thanks to the men who served in Vietnam. There has been much said in the national press about the alienation of Vietnam veterans. Perhaps their arrival home during a era now being called the "me decade" placed them in a society that was just too callous to say thank you.

A parade and a monument are small thanks for men who served their country well, and at great personal toll. But if the expression is sincere, perhaps the message will be clear. These men are heroes and deserve the honor.

A very sincere thank you is also due to Fred Shine, commander of the Wilmington D.A.V. He is the man who has organized Wilmington's efforts to give recognition to Vietnam veterans.

He has said that his one request would be for Vietnam veterans to march with the parade on Saturday. It begins at the Glen Road School at 11 a.m.

Wilmington's Vietnam casualties

The John Fullerton Memorial at Silver Lake is located on a lot known for many years as Fuller's Beach. Landscaping for the memorial has upgraded the lot, which had been vacant for many years.

School exercises honor Vietnam servicemen

Memorial Day observances in Wilmington's West Intermediate School were held May 27. The hour-long program opened with the combined West and North bands playing several selections including March Heroic.

Principal Bill Fay offered the main address, speaking on the history, meaning and relevance of Memorial Day. Eighth grader Donna Valente then introduced Eric Braciska, Robert DeSantis, Beverly Dalton and Larry May.

In turn each told the audience a little about the soldiers Wilmington lost to the Vietnam War: John Rich, John Fullerton, Richard Welch and Robert Parent. The program was dedicated to these young men.

Following the dedication was a slide show of town memorials and scenes from Wildwood Cemetery. In conjunction with the slide show, the Select Chorus sang "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?" The program concluded with the band playing America the Beautiful. Faculty advisors for the observance were Bill Fay, Dan Spriggs, Judy Troughton, Luther Enstad, Barbara Mette and Abby Russell.

Tech students top VICA competition

Shawsheen Tech students won a total of 16 medals in a recent VICA competition. Vocational - Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) is a nationwide organization which serves vocational students from secondary and post-secondary schools.

Shawsheen Tech has the largest VICA organization in the state and was one of the schools taking part in the competition held recently at Northeast Regional in North Reading.

Tech students returned home with a total of 16 medals; five thirds, five seconds and six first place awards were made to local competitors.

Gold medalists

Bill Malas, senior, Billerica, auto mechanics; Ken Jackson, senior, Wilmington, machine shop; Mary Baitcock, senior, Burlington, typing; Joe Williams, junior, Billerica, culinary; Kathy Jordan, senior, Billerica, shorthand; Kris Lobsien, senior, Tewksbury, word processing.

In addition, a 1984 automobile will be presented to Shawsheen Tech by General Motors because of Bill Malas winning the automotive contest.

Karen Johnson, 11th grade Billerica resident was reelected as VICA state secretary. She is in the health services department at Shawsheen Tech.

Gold medalists will go to the national VICA competition this month which will be held in Louisville, Ky. Accompanying them will be Shawsheen Tech Co-Advisor Paul Smith of the Business Tech Department and Ray Elden of the Plumbing Department.

Silver medalists

Jim Gervais, junior, Tewksbury, carpentry; Linda Cusaito, junior, Tewksbury,

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I have read your article on the family, (Pg.4, May 11). You have been a friend of the family, as well as a Wilmington institution for these many years. The town's history would never be complete without your input. I hesitate to say how long I have known you, but your wife is my classmate.

I would have liked to send the article to my sisters, but alas, you overlooked one of them. George Hathaway had four daughters. We are all alive and well: Helen lives in West Hartford; Mary Louise in Charleston, S.C., and Anne, a recent widow, who has just paid me an Easter visit, lives in Ashland, Ky. They have 10 children and 24 grandchildren.

George went to Medical School at Harvard. He did not attend the undergraduate college. It was not obligatory in those days for entrance to the medical school. It is true that he was the youngest graduate in 1902, but the record probably has been broken since. He delivered his first OB patient at the age of 19!

John and George were the sons of Francis Ebenazar and Maria B. Brown Hathaway. Frank was a half brother and Hattie a half sister to these brothers. At no time was Francis known as "Frank." In fact some of my grandmother's diaries refer to him as "Mr. Hathaway."

I have his gold headed cane, engraved "F.E. Hathaway, Boston." grandfather was well known in the city. His shoe store provided the city police with their shoes, and he invented the Boston Garter, and an arch support shoe.

He must have been a fearless man too. On Saturday nights he would walk from the store to North Station, take the train to North Wilmington and then walk home to Ridgefield Farm, now known as the Harnden Tavern. He would carry the week's receipts under his arm in a shoe box, and he never was robbed.

Grandfather died in 1907, before my parents were married. He acquired the Brown acreage in 1902, and moved from his town home on Dartmouth Street, Boston, at that time.

When my father was sent to China by the US Navy in 1910 mother and I spent the spring of 1910 at Ridgefield Farm, until the cottage was built. Grandmother gave the cottage and about 25 acres of land to mother and me.

The State of Massachusetts took about 11 acres, when Route 93 was constructed. Seven acres went to a developer and I understand from Ray Forrest that the board of appeals has granted three houselots for construction. The houselot has been purchased by Gar and Marietta Thomas-Moore. I hope the people of Wilmington will welcome them in their first new home.

I look forward to more of your historical articles.

Sincerely,

Hope Hathaway

Thanks to Hope Hathaway, for filling in some of the long ago details on Frank and Maria Hathaway. Hope is now an Arizona resident and it is to be hoped her air conditioner is in good working order.

The grandmother of whom she writes is a descendant of the Dr. Silas Brown who purchased the Harnden Tavern and over 300 acres of land in 1816. The original Wilmington Water Department building and wellfield is on that land. The old Salem and Lowell Railroad station, at that site, was known as Brown's Crossing. The name board can still be seen at the pumping station.

Her grandmother also owned the land that is today known as Hathaway Acres, and the Wilmington Regional Health Center. The original farm was Lot One, in the old Land of Nod.

Dr. Brown, born in Tewksbury, was descended from one of the first settlers in that town. The Brown Street name is derived from the fact that the road led to the Brown farm, on the banks of the Shawsheen River. It is to be believed that Dr. Brown was born in the Brown Tavern in Tewksbury Center.

The story to which Hope Hathaway refers, in the May 11th Town Crier, told of a board of appeals decision allowing the sale of the last land in Wilmington owned by a member of the Hathaway family.

Larz

Dear Larz:

Here's a copy of a letter I sent to Chief Wandell of the Fire Dept. Group three was really great with our nursery children. I think it would be a nice gesture to publicly thank them and I hope you would consider printing the letter.

Thanks,

Linda (Sullivan) Walsh

Dear Chief Wandell:

Last Wednesday the children of Stepping Stones Nursery School visited the fire station. We would like to thank the men in group three for making our tour such a learning experience.

The children are still talking about their exciting day. The visit was highly educational and entertaining too! It made the children feel comfortable to know the firefighters are their friends. The parents join us in thanking you.

Sincerely,

Linda E. Walsh, director

"Sammy" Saturday, June 11

A crippled boy finds life can be full and exciting in the Heartland film release entitled "Sammy." Heartland Productions, Inc. of Des Moines, Iowa brings an exciting film that is alive with love.

Russell Doughten, Jr., Heartland's president and the producer-director for Sammy has captured on film the demonstration of love working to solve family conflict. Sammy, a young crippled boy is trapped in a small apartment with a resentful older brother while his parents work to pay the extra bills caused by his condition. Humor and suspense add to the pattern designed to catch and hold the audience up to the last scene.

Families in this area can experience love at work when Sammy is shown at the First Baptist Church of Wilmington on Saturday, June 11 at 7:15 p.m.

Appeals board to decide Jade East additions

Members of the Tewksbury Board of Appeals will walk the property of the Jade East Restaurant on Main Street before they issue a final judgement on a request for a variance from the zoning bylaws. But, some members of the board said they liked some of the things they heard during a public hearing on Monday, May 23.

Board member Don McKinley was impressed because of plans to help handicapped people by adding handicapped accessible restrooms and handicapped parking. And member Louis Carciofi believes the water problems that exist in nearby areas "will be helped."

Also to walk the area will be Engineer Robert Morris. It is he who prepared the plans for Jade East.

The board of appeals has already decided that as a part of the decision, the parking adjacent to Kennedy Road will be limited to nine parking spaces.

The restaurant owner has purchased land, on the right side, as the restaurant appears from Main Street, and has been doing some work there. It is planned to add two handicapped accessible restrooms from the lounge. Handicapped parking spaces are to be added as well.

The proposed construction will be a 15 foot addition in the front of the building and a 6.4 foot addition in back.

Objections came from Kennedy Road residents. Donald Fournier told the board that he has had a sump pump in his cellar for 14 years. He used to run it twice a day. Now he has to keep it running all the time, since Jade East started excavation.

Ted Meleschuk didn't think there was a hardship, which must be shown before a variance can be granted. It was a case of applying after the fact, he charged. When Engineer Bob Morris said the hardship was caused because of a gas pipe line easement being near Jade East, Meleschuk told the appeals board that he was there 14 years ago when the gas line was put in. The board should consider the Kennedy Road residents, he charged, not the customers who park three deep on Kennedy Road.

Virginia Desmond named "Woman of the Year"

Virginia F. "Ginny" Desmond, of Rockvale Rd., Tewksbury was voted "Woman of the Year" on Wednesday, April 27, by the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The Xi Alpha Delta Chapter honored Desmond because of her work in woman's health and community work with young people.

The honor was awarded at a ceremony at the Manor Four in Manchester, New Hampshire, where she was given a corsage of yellow roses - the Sorority's sign of friendship - a plaque and a delightful evening of dining and fellowship.

Desmond is a Certified Adult Nurse Practitioner, graduating from Harvard University - Massachusetts General Program in 1976.

She worked with Joel Johnson, M.D. in Melrose, where she was the first nurse practitioner in that area. Dr. Johnson was her preceptor.

In 1977 she worked at Somerville Hospital as a pioneer in setting up an adolescent unit for health care of urban adolescents and dealt with several health issues including, health care, drugs, birth control, alcohol related problems and prevention health education.

In 1979 Desmond worked with Dr. James P. Koch on a research project for a new birth control method known as the cervical cap.

She is now working in the urgent care department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington.

Desmond is very involved in the Tewksbury Congregational Church, including being the Junior High Fellowship Youth Director for three years. A job she says she loves and enjoys.

She considers one of her major achievements to be her work with Girl Scouting. She has been very involved in Troop 520 and now as her children grow, she is a part of Cadet Troop 166 and Brownie Troop 177.

She is the wife of Richard Desmond and the mother of two girls, Michelle 14 and Nancy 12.

Rev. Mrs. Tansy Chapman

Rev. Mrs. Tansy Chapman ordained as priest

The Rev. Mrs. Tansey Chapman, vicar of the Wilmington Episcopal Chapel at Aldrich Road and Forest Street, was ordained to the priesthood on May 14, in St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Burlington. It was the first ordination in the history of St. Mark's. The Rt. Rev. Roger Blanchard performed the ordination for the Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts.

The Rev. Mrs. Chapman is now the assistant priest at St. Mark's and the vicar of the Episcopal Chapel in Wilmington.

Mrs. Chapman lives in North Reading with her husband Paul and three children. After many years of study and preparation, the Rev. Chapman has a sense of immense satisfaction. She is doing what she wants to do and she loves it. She performed her first baptism on May 22. She has described St. Mark's as a "very warm parish, and very good about accepting a woman as a priest."

Mrs. Chapman was presented for ordination by her husband, Dr. Paul Chapman, Anna Caskey, Dr. Bessie Chambers and the Rev. Donald F. Winslow. The liturgist was the Rev. William P. Seawarx, rector of St. Mark's.

She is a graduate of the Episcopal Divinity School, in Cambridge. She was ordained a deacon last year by the Rt. Rev. John Coburn, Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, at the Cathedral of St. Paul in Boston.

A native of England, she was educated at Leicestershire and Oxford and trained to be a medical social worker at the Institute of London. Her grandfather was a priest in the Anglican Church.

She came to the United States in 1964 to work at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mrs. Chapman made her decision in 1976, when the Episcopal Church agreed to accept women as priests. Her decision was to follow what she felt had always been her natural calling.

Prior to becoming a member of the staff at St. Mark's she had worked at the N.E. Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn as assistant to the chaplain, and supervisor of seminarians.

As the vicar of the Forest Street Chapel, the Rev. Mrs. Chapman conducts services at 11:30 a.m. on Sundays. During July and August the services will be at 9:30 a.m.

School closing news from TJHS

With the summer fast approaching, the Tewksbury Junior High School administration is enlisting the support of parents to ensure a smooth conclusion to the school year.

The last day of school has been set for Tuesday, June 21. The junior high will follow a regular daily class schedule with regular dismissals through Monday, June 20. Textbooks will be collected Friday, June 17 or Monday, June 20. The annual awards day assembly will be featured for the major portion of the final day of school, with dismissals from the junior high beginning at 11 a.m.

Final report cards will be mailed prior to July 1. Seventh and eighth grade students must earn 19 credits in order to be promoted to grades eight and nine. Ninth grade students must earn 20 credits, including passing ninth grade English, in order to be promoted to grade 10.

Students, who have not earned sufficient promotion credits will have to arrange for summer school elsewhere. Most programs require enrollment prior to July 5, 1983 and require students provide their own transportation. The administration hopes to inform all parents of the need for summer school prior to July 1. Summer school information can be obtained at the guidance office (851-3411).

Students who have outstanding financial obligations for lost or damaged school property and textbooks, must meet these debts prior to June 20, 1983 or their report cards will be withheld. All students have been informed of these obligations by teachers. Checks should be made payable to the Town of Tewksbury and given directly to the teacher involved for proper credit.

Earlier this month, seventh grade students received recommendations for grouping based upon test scores and teacher ratings. In order to plan appropriately for next year, it is imperative that the response portion of that form be returned by June 1. If a parent feels that a change in levels is warranted, please make an appointment to discuss this with a counselor.

The student council is planning one final event - a dance for Junior High School students on Friday, June 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. This event is open only to current Junior High School students, no students from other schools will be allowed to attend. Admission will be $2.00 per student. The usual regulations for dances will be enforced for this event.

And while one school year ends, the administration and staff have already started to plan for the 1983-84 school year. The administration hopes to retain the current program of studies and course offerings for next year, says Principal Richard Griffin.

Home room listings and bus routes for September will be printed in The Town Crier in late August along with any other late developments.

BEFORE YOU CAN ORDER THE RIGHT INVESTMENT, YOU HAVE TO UNDERSTAND THE MENU.

These days, choosing an account at most banks is like trying to order food at a restaurant. Because they use language that's hard to understand. That's why we've put this menu together. It explains our accounts clearly and concisely. In language that's easy to understand. So look it over. And if you have any questions or would like to request an account, a Shawmut banker will be glad to help.

Regular Savings

This is an appetizing account. It pays you interest from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. Your money is compounded, you get interest on your interest. You earn a mouthwatering 5.25% annual interest with this account.

Automatic Savings

The ideal way to save is by depositing a set amount into your account on a regular basis. The more you save, the more you earn. It's easier to spend money than it is to save it. So sign up for Automatic Savings. That's where we put you on a "money diet." You can't eat how much you want to save each week or month. And we automatically transfer the amount from your checking or NOW account. The transfer will appear on your monthly checking or NOW account statement.

Savings Certificates

Medical care, your kids' education. A summer house. You have to plan and save for these things. If you should talk to us about our savings certificates. Each one is tailored to suit different saving requirements.

Six-Month Money Market Certificate
If you want to earn a high fixed rate of return, the Six-Month Money Market Certificate is for you. With a minimum $2,500 on deposit for 26 weeks, your funds earn a guaranteed rate of interest. And because we know how much you want to save each week or month, we'll automatically transfer the amount from your checking or NOW account. The transfer will appear on your monthly checking or NOW account statement.

One-Year Money Market Certificate
Federal regulations prohibit the compounding of interest during the term of this certificate. So, during which, we'll withdraw your interest every month and deposit it in a Regular Savings Account or NOW account that compounds interest. That way you can have your cake and eat it, too.

1½, 2½, and 3½-Year Money Market Certificates
These certificates are attractive for smaller savers. Because they pay high rates within your reach. But the minimum deposit is much lower than our Six-Month Money Market Certificate. The money rate changes periodically. But once a certificate is purchased, the rate remains constant until maturity.

Remember, there is a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from savings certificates.

Liquid Investment Account

The ingredients in our Liquid Investment Account are very rich. You get competitive money market rates, prompt liquidity, check-writing privileges, and the security of FDIC insurance. Something you don't get with money market funds.

The minimum investment is $2,500. The rate is variable and subject to weekly change. So you'll always earn interest at a competitive rate.

Individual Retirement Account
An IRA is the perfect recipe for planning a more secure future. By contributing generous portions annually, you'll build up an extraordinary amount of money. And to top it all off, those contributions are tax-deferred. At Shawmut, we have a variety of IRA investment options, too. So you have flexibility for your own personal situation. There are substantial interest and tax penalties for early withdrawal, but who would want to?

Checking Accounts

A checking account is an ideal way to pay your bills. You'll get a statement with a record of your expenses every month. Plus, you can get a Shawmut Card that lets you use Shawmut Electronic Teller. They're very convenient, because you can do your banking in seconds, anytime you want.

Minimum Balance Checking
Having a moderate minimum balance requirement makes this an economical account that can help you avoid monthly service charges.

Regular NOW Account
If you decide you want to maintain a higher balance, you'll find our Regular NOW Account to be financially interesting. Because not only will you have unlimited checking, you'll be earning interest. There are no monthly service charges or transaction fees unless your balance goes below the minimum.

Prefixed NOW Account
If you can maintain a $2,500 minimum balance in your account, our Prefixed NOW Account is for you. It gives you unlimited checking and earns you higher interest than our Regular NOW Account. And there are no monthly service charges or transaction fees if you maintain the minimum balance.

THE FDIC INSURES YOU
Which ever account you choose, you can rest assured that your money will be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for up to $100,000.

Current rates for all of our savings, investments, and checking accounts are available at any Shawmut office. Or just call our toll-free number, 1-800-882-1008 (Toll-free in Worcester County). Information is also available on interest calculation, minimum balance requirements, and any applicable service charges.

You know the feeling. You're in a fancy French restaurant. The waiter brings the menu. You take one look and voilà! You can't tell the crêpes from the croissants.

Unfortunately, things aren't a great deal better at most banks.

Because with all the savings and investment options around these days, the differences between them are about as clear as pea soup.

So, at Shawmut, we've created a menu of our own. It explains all our savings and investment plans in clear, easy to understand language.

To get yours, visit your local Shawmut office, call us or send in our coupon. We think it will make all those savings and investment choices a bit easier to digest.

I'd like to see the menu please.

Spotlighters' annual meeting June 14

The annual meeting of the Silver Lake Spotlighters community theatre will be held Tuesday, June 14 at 7:15 p.m. in the V.F.W. Hall, Main Street (Route 38) in Wilmington.

"The plans for the future of the Spotlighters' organization are really very exciting," said Celia Bartolotti, the theatre group's current president. "We have some major announcements to make at the annual meeting, and we urge all our members to come and share the good news."

Newcomers are also encouraged to attend the annual meeting, according to Janice Rudnicki of 20 Lloyd Rd., Wilmington, a relative newcomer herself. (The November production of Mame was Rudnicki's introduction to the Spotlighters.)

"The June 14 meeting will be an opportunity for anyone interested in community theatre, or toying with the idea of getting involved, to become acquainted with current members and learn about our plans and projects for the future," explained Rudnicki.

After a brief business meeting and the election of the new board of directors, there will be refreshments, including a cash bar and music provided by local DJ James Smith.

"We're a very social, affable group," said Rudnicki. "I hope many new friends will join us on the 14th."

The Silver Lake Spotlighters, who lost their rehearsal space and inventory in a November arson fire, have not let the tragedy stop them. After a successful February benefit performance at the Shriner's Auditorium, the group was more determined than ever to carry on.

"There have been set-backs - like cancelling the remainder of our scheduled season - but, we're continuing to perform and be active in the community," said President Bartolotti. "We're a little like gypsies without a permanent space right now, but thanks to the Wilmington Congregational Church, which is providing us with temporary rehearsal space, and other thoughtful friends, we've been able to mount our regular summer Touring Company, conduct theatre workshops, and plan a fall production of Grease."

In addition to the June 14 annual meeting, upcoming Spotlighter activities include Touring Company performances at the Wilmington Congregational Church on June 10, and on the Town Common on July 4, a windjammer cruise raffle with the winners drawn at the Spotlighters' Las Vegas Night, June 25, at the Wilmington Knights of Columbus Hall.

"Our productions are only one way to become involved with the Spotlighters," explained Rudnicki. "There's always a lot going on, including theatre parties to other community theatre or professional performances. I hope many area residents will join us on June 14 at the VFW Hall and find out just how much the Spotlighters have to offer."

If you would like to attend the Spotlighter annual meeting, please notify Mary Sheehan at 666-5273 by June 10.

Cong. Markey offers service academy workshops

Congressman Ed Markey will kick off a long-range mobile office outreach project with 18 special U.S. Service Academy workshops in 7th Congressional District communities during the month of June.

Markey announced plans for a series of month-long programs in his mobile office beginning in June and continuing through the fall. The Congressman explained that the first of these outreach programs, the Service Academy Workshops, throughout the month of June. Other programs - dealing with topics such as veterans' affairs, crime prevention and student financial aid - will be the subject of similar month-long outreach efforts during the spring, summer and fall.

Markey said the U.S. Service Academy workshops, like the programs planned for subsequent months, will be held in addition to the regular mobile office visits to 7th Congressional District cities and towns.

Markey's mobile office makes scheduled stops in 15 communities each week year-round.

According to Markey, the goal of the June workshops is to provide high school juniors interested in attending any of the U.S. Service Academies - West Point, the U.S. Air Force Academy, Annapolis or the Merchant Marine Academy - with information on proper application procedures.

"This is the time when students thinking about applying to our U.S. Service Academies should begin taking the necessary first steps. It is important to know what application materials should be used and what school records must be gathered," Markey said.

Mobile office Service Academy Workshops will be held in Wilmington at Memorial Library, Monday, June 27 from 10 to 11 a.m. and in Tewksbury at the Army Recruiting Office, 2236 Main St., Monday, June 27 from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Pub pic

Richard Qualey of Picadilli Pub is showing a picture of the proposed restaurant to be erected at 1795 Main St. to the board of appeals on May 23. At right is Attorney Eugene Geary.

Pub to replace Exxon station

The owners of the Picadilli Pub were granted a variance from zoning bylaws by the Tewksbury Board of Appeals following a public hearing on Monday, May 23. The variance will allow them to build at the site of the former Exxon gas station near the Marshall's Shopping Center. The vote was unanimous.

Richard Qualey represented the owner, and Attorney Gene Geary presented the case to the appeals board. Construction will start as soon as possible.

There will be seats for 150 persons, in a building which will have 1350 square feet. The lot size will be 45,000 square feet and there will be parking for 100 cars. There will be 35 to 40 employees, the board was told.

The Picadilli Pub, the appeals board was told, does not cater to "entertainment." There will be just background music. There will be no television, no computer games and no juke boxes.

The first Picadilli Pub was started in Westboro, and there are now two more, one in Auburn and one in Peabody. Tewksbury will be the site of the fourth restaurant. The owners are also proposing another location in North Reading, according to published reports. Part of the structure of the former gas station will be renovated with an addition being built on.

The hours are to be, Sundays from 4 to 11 p.m. and weekdays, 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.

John Gleason of Main Street and Joseph Aubut of Whipple Road were present to ask questions. Both declared themselves satisfied.

Selectmen, several weeks ago, granted the owners a liquor license for the pub.

Tewksbury Voter registration

Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey has announced a special voter registration day. The board of registrars will conduct the voter registration session at the town hall from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, June 4.

June 4 will be the last in which previously unregistered voters will be able to register for the upcoming special townwide election on Saturday, June 25.

Bocko graduates summa cum laude

Cynthia Josephine Bocko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Bocko of Hood Road, Tewksbury, graduated summa cum laude with a bachelor of arts degree in speech communications at the 107th commencement of Boston College on Monday, May 23.

A 1979 graduate of Notre Dame Academy, Tyngsboro, she ranked among 1250 graduates in the college of Arts and Sciences. Having recently completed a public relations internship at the Downtown Crossing association in Boston, Cynthia plans to pursue a career in the public relations field.

DON'T IGNORE CAVITIES
"Look, Ma, only two small cavities?" Sounds good? Don't kid yourself. If you could look THROUGH each cavity-marked tooth, however, you'd see that a lot more damage has been done than meets the eye. When a cavity first appears, the enamel of the tooth has already been damaged, but below the enamel, the bacteria that has caused the cavity in the first place may have multiplied and begun attacking the dentin or core of the tooth. If you continue to ignore the cavity, the disease process continues until the bacteria start attacking the pulp or nerve of the tooth. By this time you will begin to feel the pain of toothache. Unfortunately, by then it may not be possible to save the tooth. Don't ignore any cavity, no matter how small and inconsequential it may appear, not if you want to save your teeth. Early treatment by your dentist and regular checkups are the only ways to protect your dental health.

Warning-steer clear of this umpire

No, the umpire has not flung aside Wilmington High School catcher Rick McQuesten nor the Lawrence Central Catholic baserunner. He is not clearing a path for the two players either, but merely signalling that the Central player has indeed beaten the throw to the plate and is safe in last week's 7-1 WHS setback.

Tom Aprile Memorial Softball

Remember the Class of '82

Battle of The Classes Game One '82' 15 '81' 8

The opening game of the Tom Aprile Memorial Softball Tournament was close until the Class of '82 broke it open in the late innings to win going away. Ted Moran led the offense with a pair of homeruns, while Paul Bova chipped in with three hits, including a homerun. Rob Santo also homered.

Joe Burbine led the '81 group with a pair of hits. Jean Robinson was the winning pitcher. Janelle Fitch was the hard luck loser.

Game Two '80' 8 '74' 2

It was the Rob Millett - Sue Rowe show, as Millett led the offense with three hits and sparked at shortstop with his defensive skills, while Sue kept the '74 group at bay with her pitching. Gary Hastings and a pair of hits for the winners. For '74, from a cast of 18, it was a manager's headache getting everyone into the game, but coaches Sierrazza and Capozzi accomplished it with the two platoon alphabetical system. The combo of Mike Herra and Paul Capozzi took the loss.

Game Three '73' 8 '72' 7

In what's becoming a traditional rivalry, the Class of '73 came storming back from a three run deficit in the bottom of the seventh to score four big runs to win an exciting contest. Jean Aprile picked up the win in relief of Karen Boeri for Frank Simmons of the '72 gang.

Wayne Crosswell was the offensive hero, as he knocked in

Tewksbury's champs to be honored

The 1982 Tewksbury Pop Warner traveling C team, also known as the Chiefs, was recently chosen as the number one C team in the United States by Pop Warner Headquarters in Philadelphia. The Chiefs were undefeated, unscored on Merrimack Valley Champions and knocked off unbeaten Ridgefield Conn., 14-7 in a postseason bowl game.

To gain this national honor, each boy and cheerleader maintained an average of 90.0 in their school work which is verified and checked by National Headquarters. The Chiefs feat was unique in more ways than one, with Tewksbury C becoming the first Massachusetts team at any Pop Warner level to earn the number ranking nationally.

This was also the first year Tewksbury competed on a league level in the C Division since 1972. Since dozens of teams in each division around the country finish undefeated out of some 2.5 million youngsters participating in Pop Warner football, much of the emphasis in choosing the prestigious national top 10 is based upon the classroom performance of all the squad's players and cheerleaders. The official incorporated name of the esteemed National Youth Football Organization is 'Pop Warner Little Scholars,' so it is only natural that the educational aspects should also be weighed heavily. The program has always been geared around well-rounded individuals. The team has been awarded championship jackets from the Tewksbury Pop Warner Boosters, and the National championship plaque was presented to team representatives at the National banquet in Philadelphia May 19.

June 2 the Chiefs players, cheerleaders and coaches will travel to the State House, where State Rep. James Miceli will present the group to the House of Representatives, where they will be awarded citations of merit from the chamber.

The board of selectmen will also have a local award ceremony

Tewksbury Pop Warner registration

The Tewksbury Pop Warner football program will hold its 1983 registration this Saturday, June 4 at St. William's School from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

To be eligible for this program, a boy or girl must have been born on or between August 1, 1969 and July 31, 1975. In addition to these ages, boys only, born on or between January 1, 1969 and July 31, 1969 are eligible to play on the traveling A teams if they weigh 115 pounds or less on opening day. The maximum weight for A team candidates is 135 pounds on opening days.

Boys and girls must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and bring a copy of their birth certificate as proof of age. All boys and girls must register even if they were on a team last year. Candidates will be assigned to teams according to national age and weight limits and ability. All boys who sign up will make a team regardless of vacation status if noted on the application. Girls will be taught a cheer which they will be judged on for ability and then will be assigned to teams age and space permitting.

The program will field traveling A, B and C teams this year along with four intercity league teams. The D teams format will be added to Tewksbury's program for the first time this year, thereby separating the candidates into more competitive groupings.

Traveling teams

A team, 12-13-14, weight 90-135 pounds; B team, 11-12-13, weight, 80-115 pounds; C team, 10-11-12, weight, 65 to 100 pounds.

Intercity teams

C team, 11-12-13, weight, 65-110 pounds; D team, 8-9-10, weight, 50-85 pounds.

The program supplies all uniforms and equipment except personal items, and welcomes all new boys and girls who would like to join Pop Warner football. There is no registration fee.

Machine bounces Barons

Green Machine 15 Red Barons 5

The Machine rolled behind superb pitching from Kristine Valletta, homers by Christine Bonnirigo and Kris Cavanaugh and fine hits by Darlene Puma, Kristen Southmayd and Angela Gage.

Warriors 9 Swingers 7

The Warriors came from behind to notch their first victory of the season with solid pitching from Kari Lessard and Danielle Fay and hitting from Becky Powers, Andrea Kane, Jen Patterson and Nancy O'Leary and awesome fielding from Sheila McEwen, Heather Keiley, Katie Finn and Michelle Bassett.

Warriors 14 Red Barons 5

The Warriors' offense came alive in a good team effort led by Danielle Fay (two hits, eight RBIs) and Mary Fisher. Good outfield support came from Ellen Lambe, Karen O'Leary, Melissa Masse and Shelly Twohig.

Rockets 2 Knee Socks 1

Super pitching came from Kelly Sullivan and Terry Murray for the Rockets and Kathleen Madden for the Knee Socks. Hitting for the Rockets were Sheryl Topping, Terry Murray, Kelly Sullivan, Jennifer Bissett, Lori Fuller, Debbie Dellascio, Barbie Lafave and Sharon Dellascio.

Rockets 18 Alley Cats 3

Sharon Dellascio with a grand slam homerun, two homers from Terry Murray and one from Debbie Dellascio led the Rockets to the win. Also hitting for the Rockets were Jean Gullage, Barbie Lafave and Ann Marie Casey.

TMHS junior varsity softball

Redmen stay on roll

The TMHS junior varsity softball team continued its winning ways last week. Monday the Redmen visited Greater Lawrence, playing their third game in a row in the rain, and pounded their hosts, 15-3. Capitalizing on walks and errors, the Redmen used their two hits (Cheryl Tassinari and Eileen McDermott) to the best advantage. Cheryl notched the win, improving her record to 8-2-1.

TMHS hosted Lawrence Wednesday and extracted well-deserved revenge for their opening loss at Lawrence April 21.

Capitalizing on Lancer errors and 12 stranded baserunners, Tewksbury took the 10-6 victory. Cheryl pitched three and two-thirds innings and, thanks to a strong relief job by Eileen McDermott, raised her record to 9-2-1. Dee Lamport, Tassinari and Bonnie Staniewicz were the big bats for Tewksbury, helped out by Berna Pacini and Sue Wyshak RBIs.

Bonnie leads the team offense with a .407 batting average, while Sue Wyshak's .930 fielding average is tops defensively.

The Redmen complete their season this week with three rematches, Monday at home against Methuen, Wednesday at Dracut and Friday at Wilmington.

College Corner

Local trio Framingham stars

Karen Evans, a freshman from Wilmington, was named the Rams' Unsung Hero on the Framingham State varsity softball team this spring. Playing every game behind the plate, Evans batted .322 with 10 RBIs.

Helene Desforges, a freshman from Wilmington, was a member of the Rams' 3-9-3 field hockey team this fall.

Mike Morgan, a senior from Tewksbury, was the starting goalie on the Rams' 4-11-1 men's soccer team this fall.

Wilmington Little League

Smith, bats Angels past Orioles

Major League Division

Angels 5 Orioles 0

Behind the shutout pitching and hot bat of Mike Smith, the Angels gained their fourth victory of the season. Vinny Zarella (two hits), Steve Cutone, Neil Pentinen and Paul Lawton supplied the remainder of the Angel offense.

Paul Trites pitched another strong game for the Orioles, while Danny Santos came up with a double.

Twins 4 White Sox 2

After giving up a two run first inning homer to Dale Gaffey, Chris Allen settled down to shutout the White Sox for the remaining five innings, allowing only hits to Sean DeMaggio and Scott MacMillan while striking out 12.

Meanwhile the Twins offense was fired up by the smoking bats of Brian Kane (two doubles), Billy Burns (two hits), Chris Allen and Eric Cushing. Cushing also made a game ending catch in centerfield with the tying runs on second and third.

Tigers 7 Indians 6

The Tigers scored five runs in the top half of the last inning to defeat the Indians. The consistent pitching of Chris Ward, Eric Palm and David Morse, combined with the timely hitting of Andy Parr, Jason Bere and John McGrath gave the Tigers a victory. Strong defensive games were turned in by Jay Pilcher, Jeff Botte and Joe Pzazza.

The Indians offense was led by Paul DeFronzo, Steve Lowney and Robbie Craig.

Tigers 10 Red Sox 7

The Tigers received a strong pitching performance from Andy Parr. Andy allowed only one hit in his three innings. The Tigers offense was supplied by Jonathan Oliver, Eric Palm and Joe Pzazza.

The Red Sox' offense came from Steve Holbrook (three hits), Steve Edmonds and Eric Pote.

Orioles 6 White Sox 5

J.R. Suprenant of the Orioles pitched a courageous game for more than five innings before being forced to leave because of illness. Danny Santos pitched well in relief to seal the O's victory. Timely hits were supplied by Dick Herson (two), Danny Santos and Mike Walsh. Eric Richards made a game ending catch in rightfield with the tying run on third base. A tip of the hat to Frank Ramsdell, who was hit by a pitch leading off the game and was forced to leave.

Scott MacMillan and Steve Hanafin had 13 strikeouts for the Sox, while the White Sox offense was supplied by Doug Michaud, Dale Gaffey (two hits each), Mark Lee, Mike Bento, Sean DeMaggio and Steve Killela.

Indians 9 Red Sox 6

Robbie Craig was the winning pitcher, with three scoreless innings. Paul DeFronzo's four hits led the Indian offense. Todd McNally has a hit and two RBIs and Glenn Hooper had a hit and an RBI. Jeff Russell had a good defensive game in centerfield.

The Red Sox offensive assault was led by Adam Pagliarulo (two hits), Mark LaCava, Steve Edmonds and David Simmons.

Yankees 7 Tigers 1

Gregg Smith and Chuck McEwen combined to pitch the Yankees to a two hit, 12 strikeout victory over the Tigers. The Yankee offensive attack was triggered by Mark Kwiatowski, Gregg Smith, Chuck McEwen and Kevin Shanteler with two hits each. Andy Parr turned in another good pitching performance. Jason Bere and Matt Lopez collected the two Tiger hits.

Farm Division

Expos 11 Phillies 11

This is the second meeting of these two teams and the second time the game ended in a tie. Good all around team effort on the part of both teams.

A's 5 Rangers 10

Royals 11 Padres 6

Another good game for pitcher Anthony Bonarrigo of the Royals. He was helped in his victory by the homerun hitting of teammates Dan Ballou, Mike Sawyer and Mark Staffier.

The Padres put up a pretty good offense led by Bobby Lesko and Scott Carideo.

Brewers 8 Phillies 3

The Brewers' pitching of Bobby Palazzi and Eric Creeth and the hitting of Bob Baronowski, Greg Maiella, John Smith and Brian Oxman was too strong for the Phillies pitching staff of Ken Vachon, Kirk DiBenedetto and Chris Nolan.

Padres 12 Astros 7

Team defense was the key for the Padres, with the fielding gem of the day turned in by Mike Pilcher. Offensively, the Padres' attack was led by Andy Blackburn, Matt McManus and Mike Pilcher.

The Astros, with a great late inning rally, were led by the outstanding play of Ray Metcalfe, Frank Murray and Eric Flynn.

Royals 10 Expos 5

The triple hit by Expo Mike Gaglione and the great offensive plays of Mark Woodbury, Eric Heseltun and Joey Lessard weren't enough to hold back the Royals' pitching and the hitting led by Christian Armata, who was four for four at the plate.

Mariners 8 Rangers 3

Brewers 16 A's 12

Good pitching from Brian Oxman for the Brewers with timely hitting of Ed Curtin and strong defense of Bobby Palazzi and Steve Toto led the team to victory.

The A's got good pitching from Kevin Fuller, strong hitting by Derek Gray and good fielding by Joe Bayles.

Pirates 14 Cardinals 11

Paul Lewis led the Pirates offense with a pair of three run homers. Eric Maciejewski had two hits, as did Jason Bailey and James Palman. Dave DeCenzo pitched a fine game with relief help from Kurt Belbin, who notched the final three outs.

For the Cardinals, homers were belted by Richard Stewart and Ray Robinson, while excellent performances were turned in by Ken Leet and Steve Finnerty.

Mets 6 Cardinals 1

Jason Stevenson and Michael George combined to hold the Cardinals to one run. Mark Zizis led the Mets offense with two hits and four runs batted in. Bobby Surran homered for the Mets, while John Ciaramaglia, Kevin Bowlby and Jimmy Kane also chipped in with hits.

Kenny Lee pitched well for the Cardinals and had a hit. Derek Stokes and Eric Gronemeyer also had hits for the Cardinals. Larry Flynn made a beautiful defensive play, tagging a Met runner out at the plate.

Reds 13 Braves 11

The Reds' bats awoke to beat the previously undefeated Braves. For the Braves, good pitching was turned in by Richie Barletta and Dennis Walsh. Super fielding was contributed by Chris Cassiniello and Kevin O'Hearn.

Reds homers were ripped by Billy McLaughlin, and Mike Luce helped the cause. Good pitching by Mike MacCutcheon, with an outstanding relief job by Andy Jamerson.

Braves 12 Mets 6

Matt Callahan pitched six excellent innings, allowing only three hits while striking out 11. Defensively, Richie Barletta made two outstanding plays at secondbase, while Kevin O'Hearn played six great innings behind the plate. Everyone hit well, as the team collected 18 hits.

Jason Stevenson, Bob Serran and Jimmy DeMarco pitched well for the Mets. Offensively, David Hale, Mark Zizis and Kevin Bowlby had one hit apiece.

Braves 11 Cardinals 5

The Braves' remained undefeated behind the strong pitching of Matt Callahan and Dennis Walsh. The offense was led by Phil Fenton with a triple and three RBIs, with key hits by Chris Casenello, Bob Donahue and Derek Bazzotta. Good defensive plays were made by Kevin Gibson and Richie Barletta.

Derek Stokes pitched well for the Cardinals. The offense was supplied by Larry Flynn with a triple and three RBIs. Defensively, Eric Gronemeyer was outstanding.

Mariners crush Twins, 18-8

Jeff MacNeil and Brett Deveau paced the Mariners to an 18-8 rout of the Twins in Tewksbury National Minor League action last week. Throwing the leather for the Mariners were Bobby Kent, Steve Amirault and Frank Canarelli.

The Twins' offense came from Mike DiCocco and Tom Emerson. The defense was supplied by Missy Carroll, Garth Reinker and Billy Carroll.

Phillies 23 Rangers 15

Wade Fishman ripped two solid triples, while Sean Devlin got his first hit of the season to help keep the Phillies rolling. Good defense was provided by Mike Sullivan, Scott Ludwig and Martin Damian.

The big hitters for the Rangers were Lisa Cangiano, Chris Dick and Jason Loggrip. Lisa Cangiano pitched a good game with eight strikeouts and three fine defensive plays at the mound. Other standouts were Adam Frasca, Craig Loggrip and Mike Minor.

Mariners 23 Senators 5

Supplying the offense for the Mariners was Mark Amirault, Herb Delenay and Mike Kinnon. Defensive standouts were Jeff MacNeil and Doug Debie. Chris Dziadosz had a good game as the Mariners relief pitcher.

Offensive and defensive standouts for the Senators were Glenn St. Peter, Mike Burns and Ken Mallinson.

Phillies 10 Twins 4

Sean Bishop struck out 10 batters to lead the winners. Colin Bradford belted a three run homer to spark the offense. Joe Estee made a strong throw from centerfield to hold a runner

Wilmington Pop Warner field day

Wilmington Pop Warner football will hold its' second annual registration and field day outing for all players and cheerleaders for Sunday afternoon, June 12 at the Avco athletic field, Route 129, from noon until 6 p.m.

All parents and family members of players and cheerleaders registering for the upcoming Pop Warner season are also invited to attend a fun-filled afternoon of games, races, activities and refreshments, as this will be the only registration date for youngsters who will be signing-up for the 1983 season. A schedule of the day's events: Registration, signup, noon to 2 p.m.; field day activities, 2 to 3:30; food and refreshments, 3:30 to 4:30; softball games, 4:30 to 6.

All returning players and cheerleaders from the 1982 season, along with all newcomers, must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and must take along a copy of their birth certificate at the time of registration-signup.

Registration fee for the upcoming season will be $20.00 per child, $30.00 for two children per family and $40.00 for three or more children per family.

Races, contests and games will be held for youngsters at all age levels upon completion of the registration signup period.

the tying and winning runs with his second hit of the contest. Bob Noel had a home run for '72, while Rick Nickerson had a pair of hits for '73. Joan (Bellissimo) Axelrod sparked on defense for the '73 gang, while Ray Ventura was the defensive star in centerfield for '72.

Game Four

'69 '10 '71 9

In another close contest, the oldest class in the tournament came on strong in the late innings to win the one run affair. Andy Sullivan came in to relieve Chuck Casey in the second inning and held back the '71 group to earn the win.

Jim Tildsley, Dan Ballou and Gary Warford were the hitting stars for the '69 gang, while Snokey Lynch led the offense and played a spectacular brand of defense in centerfield in support of losing hurler Dick Gillis.

Paul Lyman, the Austin Prep defensive wizard, was a rock at shortstop for his '71 team.

Game Five

'82 '9 '80' 3

The '82 gang again waited until the late innings to score a bunch to break open a tight game and win their second game of the day. Ted Moran had his third homerun of the day, while Craig Richards and Mike Gray chipped in with a pair of safeties. Rod Millett and Dan Burbine led the '80 offense and Sue Rowe was bested on the mound by Jean Robinson.

Game Six

'73 '9 '69' 8

In the wildest game of the day, the Cardiac Kids of the Class of '69 scored four runs in the top of the seventh to tie it, only to have the come-from-behind Class of '73 overtake them again in the bottom of the ninth, 9-8. It was Jean Aprile against Andy Sullivan for the complete nine innings in an amazing pitching performance. Wayne Crosswell again led the offense, as his double knocked in the winning run for the second time of the day, and Jean Aprile had a pair of hits.

Jim Tildsley and Gene Baldwin paced the offense and Chick Kennedy played his usual steady defensive game for the '69 team.

Park renamed

The highlight of the day came during the break before the final game, as the field was officially dedicated in the name of Tom Aprile, who was taken from us prematurely after playing centerfield in the league for the past 10 years. After brief remarks from Father Francis Mackin and Selectman Rocco DePasquale (who had initiated the renaming of the field), Aldo Cairra, Jr., representing the Sons of Italy, presented a plaque, which was a replica of a permanent memorial, to Jack Cushing, Wilmington Softball League Commissioner, commemorating the day.

Championship Game

'82 '14 '73' 10

The class of '82 continued its strategy of scoring late to finally overtake the class of '73 in a game that saw the game tied on three different occasions. It ended with the bases loaded and the tying run at home plate, a fitting tribute to the Class of '73, the defending champs who never gave up.

Ted Moran again sparked on offense as he crunched his fourth and fifth homeruns of the day. Craig Richards, Paul Bova and Karen Evans (who caught all three games), all had three hits for the winners in support of Jean Robinson, the winning pitcher in all three games. Jean Aprile was the hard luck loser (who tired after her nine inning stint in the previous game); while offensive stars were Jim McNally, Chico Campbell, and Wayne Crosswell.

The day was highly successful, as over 500 people enjoyed the day long festivities, which were concluded with an open house by the Sons of Italy at their home on Ballardvale Street.

Youth Soccer

Tewksbury boys trounce Ashland, 8-1

Boys under 12-II soccer

The Tewksbury boys Under 12-II soccer team traveled to Ashland and scored an easy 8-1 victory. Leading Tewksbury's goal scorers was Jim Pollard with two while six boys got one each. They were Danny Remino, Ken Culbertson, Jordy Correia, Sean Wilson, David Meekins, and Kevin Breuer.

Also playing well for Tewksbury were Ryan Adams, Richard Proulx and Patrick Romano.

Tewksbury has two games remaining, hosting Winchester this Saturday and at Billerica United. Both are excellent soccer teams and should prove to provide excellent competition and a great game.

Girls U-14

Arlington 6 - Tewksbury 1

The Tewksbury GU-14 soccer team came up against a big, strong kicking Arlington team last week and suffered their biggest loss of the season, 6-1. Tewksbury started off well with Marueen Murphy scoring after two minutes, but Arlington was controlling the midfield and putting constant pressure on the Tewksbury defense who played well, keeping them scoreless until just before halftime when a clearance off a corner kick went to an Arlington player who fired home a hard shot.

The second half saw Arlington continue to dominate as they found their second scoring touch. Findign the net five times, Tewksbury had their chances, but two goalline clearances kept them to one goal.

Over the hill soccer

International 7 - United 0

In their second matchup in Over the Hill soccer action, Tewksbury International defeated Tewksbury United 7-0 in a game which International dominated from the kickoff. New to the league United never gave up and battled International all the way, but International's experience and depth were too much for them. International had goals from Dick Lee (two), Roy Felix (two), Roland Plosser (two) and Ed Planagan.

In other action, North Reading tightened its grip on first place in Division 2B beating Nashua, 5-0; in Division 2A, Billerica and Winchester continue their first place battle with Billerica 8-

Andover 11 0 and Winchester 6 - Andover 1 2.

Under-12 girls improve

In recent weeks, the Tewksbury girls' U-12 soccer team has improved their record to 4-0-2 with a 1-0 win against the Wakefield Celtics and back-to-back weekend ties with Westford, 0-0 and Wakefield, 2-2.

Against the Wakefield Celtics, Tewksbury failed to capitalize on numerous scoring opportunities until late in the first half when Tricia Mazzone broke in alone and deposited a low opposite corner shot the only goal. In the second half Wakefield came alive, but thanks to steady goaltending by Cindy Calderback and smart defense by fullbacks Nicole Rheault, Mary Williamson and Marci Niles, Tewksbury notched the win.

The next game against Westford (4-0) was a battle for first place. Tewksbury's half-back standouts were Justine Short, Pam Picano, Kim Davis, Kim Scott and Tracy Watson.

In the most recent game of the season, Tewksbury found itself having to battle back twice to go home with a 2-2 tie against a very strong Wakefield team. After being down by one goal early in the first half, Tewksbury regrouped, and thanks to a Tricia Mazzone goal (off a fine assist from Kerry Halloran), the locals tied the score before the half.

In the second half Tewksbury wiped out another one goal deficit with a great shot from rightwinger Kerry Halloran, with the assist going to halfback Julie Hunt. The victory preserved Tewksbury's perfect record.

Girls under-14 traveling

Tewksbury 7 Wakefield 11 0
The Tewksbury GU-14 girls' soccer team won their fourth game of the season to improve their record to 4-2 as they aim for a playoff berth.

Tewksbury dominated the play from the kickoff, as Chris Blake scored after six minutes, with Maureen Murphy scoring a hat trick in nine minutes and Jean Donnelly scoring just before halftime for a 5-0 lead.

The same pattern emerged in the second half, as Tewksbury again dominated and experimented with positions. Despite some careless finishing, Chris Blake and Mary Horgan scored to ice the game.

This week Tewksbury travels to Westford for the biggest game of the season, with a win practically securing a playoff spot.

Over the Hill League

No. Reading 3

Tewksbury Int. 1

In a match to determine first place, Tewksbury International lost its first game of the season to a hard playing North Reading team in Over the Hill soccer action. Tewksbury opened the scoring early (Ernest Uebel) and seemed on its way, but North Reading hit back with two goals before halftime.

In the second half Tewksbury pressed North Reading for long periods, but couldn't score.

Tewksbury Regulators 3

Andover 11 2

In other action, the Tewksbury Regulators beat Andover 11, 3-2 with a hat trick from Gilda Betencourt and a good team performance for their second win of the season.

Wilmington High School battery Rick McQuesten and Ed Olshaw get together with coach Dick Scanlon during a break in last week's 7-1 loss in their Small School Division showdown with Lawrence Central Catholic last week. The Wildcats will open tournament play later this week.

Astros set for opener

The Wilmae Astros will make their debut Wednesday night, hosting the Merrimack Valley Braves in an EMass League home game. The Astros are managed by Jim Kennedy and assisted by Barry Rosen, Dave Schuler and Mark Murphy.

Former Wilmington High School baseball players Dave Woods and Andy Leverone are members of the new entry in the EMass League, and both should be key performers as semi-professional baseball returns to Wilmington for the first time in more than a decade.

The Mariners beat the Red Legs in a four inning game that was called because of darkness. Herb Delaney pitched for the Mariners.

Pirates 10 Phillies 9

Dave Carciofi pitched a super game for the winners, as Richard Dillon went three for three with a triple and two singles. Scott Ludwig chipped in with a single and a double. Great defensive plays were made by Chad Golen, Mike Sullivan and Scott Ludwig.

Phillies 16 Mariners 12

Colin Bradford struck out 12 Mariners, while the Phillies' bats came alive with 18 basehits. Nannette Dsouza, Martin Damian and Chris Cullinan all enjoyed good days at the plate.

Colin Bradford helped himself with a base clearing triple. Mariners' manager Jerry Quaglia presented their game ball to Phillies' pitcher Colin Bradford.

The Mariners defense came from Mike Kinnon with two diving stabs at shortstop. Steve Amirault and Dave Desrochers also played well.

News from Wilmington schools

Woburn Rotary Club

The Woburn Rotary Club has made a generous contribution to the Seem Multi-Handicapped Class at Wilmington High School. The donation was a memorial to Wayne Wooldridge, a 12-year-old student in the class who died suddenly in January.

At a formal presentation on April 8, representatives of the Woburn Rotary, including Mr. Wooldridge, Wayne's father, gave a microwave oven and a tabletop refrigerator to the class to assist them with their daily lunch program.

For many years Woburn Rotary has been involved in aiding handicapped children through their donations of equipment to classes for handicapped children. There has been long-standing support for this multi-handicapped class which was previously located at the Altavesta School in Woburn. Past contributions include a room size rug and physical therapy equipment.

Sharon Ring, teacher, and Cynthia Walkling, paraprofessional along with the multi-handicapped children in the class, express a sincere thank you to the Woburn Rotary Club.

Teachers' Task Force

Seminar Day for in-service workshops was held on Wednesday, May 4, at Wilmington High School. Early dismissal of students in all schools allowed each teacher in the system time to attend two seminars dealing with professional and community concerns.

Professional speakers, members of the Wilmington faculty, consultants from the Burlington, Lexington and Billerica school systems, the district attorney's office, and various other disciplines provided expertise in developing the various topics of the seminars.

After compiling an evaluation on Seminar Day, the Teachers' Task Force Committee found that it was certainly a worthwhile experience. It is hoped that this program will be continued in the future.

Trip to Lowell

On May 6, eighth grade students from the West Intermediate School spent the day at Lowell National Historical Park. The eighth graders were students from the Social Studies classes of Allen Stone and Abigail Russell.

Rangers greeted the students and escorted them on a walking tour of several restored buildings and historic sites. Returning to the visitors' center, the students viewed a slide show, "Lowell, the Historic Revelation." Lunch was enjoyed in the "Melting Pot," a series of seven different ethnic restaurants adjoining the Visitors' Center.

Excellent weather afforded the visitors the opportunity to watch loom weavers and other craftsmen in the mill court yard. Chaperones accompanying the group were West Intermediate staff members Judith Nowak, Claudia Dufresne, William Finer, Susan Eaton, Hazel Paiva, Robert Racioppi and Sylvia Milanese.

Revised immunization laws

The Massachusetts Immunization Law has been revised and will affect many pupils in the Wilmington School system.

Mumps and rubella immunization will be required as a condition for school attendance for children in all grades, kindergarten through 12, effective September 1, 1983.

The regulations for polio and tetanus, diphtheria immunization remain unchanged.

Parents of children whose health records indicate that they require mumps and - or rubella immunization will be notified by the school nurse and should complete and return the necessary form.

If the immunization has been received or the child has had the disease, a doctor's certification is required.

Clinics will be held in those schools where children lack the necessary immunization to meet the state requirements.

Questions should be directed to the school nurse.

Variances

Daniel J. Brown, Esq. was granted a variance allowing an existing home at 21 Strout Avenue to remain on its site, within the required reserve front yard.

James F. and Madeline Y. Bimbo, Beeching Avenue, were granted a variance to allow for the erection of a garage within required reserve side and rear yards of their home.

Thomas E. Kookan, of Polyvinyl Industries, 730 Main St., was granted a special permit, authorizing the enlargement of a non-conforming building at 730 Main St. The enlargement must be in compliance with plans submitted within the application.

Arthur R. Smith, 247 Woburn St., was granted a special permit allowing the erection of a free standing sign on his property. The sign authorized can be 12 feet high and 10 feet wide. It must be no closer than 25 feet from Andover Street.

Wilmington senior topics

Employment opportunities

Minuteman Homecare Corp. has several openings for employment. Two senior aides are needed, one at the Wilmington Senior Citizen Drop-in Center, for four hours a day, five days a week. The petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land the right to use Lakeview Terrace from Locust to Grove Street as shown on said plan, for all purposes for which streets and ways may be used in the Town of Wilmington.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer, under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defense to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), on or before the fourth day of July next.

Unless an appearance is so filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

And in addition to the usual service of this notice as required by law, it is ordered that the foregoing citation be published forthwith once each week for three successive weeks in the Town-Crier a newspaper published in said Wilmington.

Witness, WILLIAM J. RANDALL, Esquire, Chief Justice of said Court, this eleventh day of May in the year nineteen hundred and eighty-three

Attest with Seal of said Court

Green Street Geriatric Center

"This place is a lifesaver.
It's like a second home"

"This place is a lifesaver. When you're all alone you can come here to talk to people. It's like a second home," says Mrs. L. of Melrose. Mr. S. of Stoneham adds, "my wife and I come two days a week. We like the environment, the staff, and the activities." The Green Street Geriatric

Center is the place these two people are talking about. Located in the Melrose Green Street Baptist Church, the center provides activities and socialization opportunities to elderly residents of Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield. The center is funded and staffed through the Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Clinic (EMMHC).

From 9 a.m. — 5 p.m. the center serves people in need of companionship, activity, and/or counseling. The average participant comes to the center 2 days per week. Morning activities often include exercise, sports, and a coffee rest period. At noontime the group breaks for a hot lunch prepared on the premises. Afternoon activities include arts and crafts, group discussions, and a variety of games.

The center has a full staff of social workers, health care workers, a recreational therapist, and a psychiatric nurse. Lorna Knapp, Geriatric Director, oversees all activities.

In addition to the Green Street Center, the Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Clinic also sponsors a Geriatric Outreach Team and an Elderly Congregate Housing Project. The Outreach Team works with the Council on Aging, hospital, and nursing home personnel to provide short or long-term assistance to elderly people in need. The team provides clinical treatment, advocacy, and consulting services.

Sometimes an outreach worker will refer a client to Beth Greenberg, Supportive Services Coordinator of the Lincoln School Congregate Housing program. The housing program provides shared subsidized housing to elders. Residents share daily tasks and living space but have the privacy of their own bedrooms. There are 3 apartments with room for a total of 15 residents. Presently there are 12 residents in the Wakefield Housing location. For more information on any of the Eastern Middlesex Mental Health Clinic Geriatric Services, please contact Lorna Knapp at 665-9154.

Schools give disposable gown high marks

By Metta Winter
Special to The Christian Science Monitor

The tassel, the bundle of strings that hangs from the freshly minted graduate's mortarboard, used to be the only part of the graduation costume that could be kept as a souvenir of the day. But now almost half of this spring's graduates can keep the whole thing — cap, gown, and tassel — because they've bought the whole thing.

Twelve years ago C. E. Ward — a Roanoke, Va., manufacturer of academic, choir, and ceremonial gowns — pioneered the disposable gowns called "keepers" or "one-trippers" that are made to be used once and then either kept as a souvenir or thrown away.

"It's really a convenience thing," said William Stephens, Ward's vice-president for academic sales. "For a long time school administrators have had real problems collecting the gowns after the ceremony was over. The kids were too excited to care, but the school was liable for any rented gowns which were not returned. Too, from the manufacturer's point of view the rental business involved so many different steps that selling them outright was much simpler."

But it is not more profitable for the companies that have been without these gowns; for them, the advent of the keeper was an economic hardship. "It threatened to make obsolete their huge inventories, built up over many years," Mr. Stephens said. Most companies tried to get at least two rentals per gown each season. With proper maintenance a well-made gown could last 15 to 20 years or more. The rental fees from the first two years paid off the company's investment; from then on it was clear profit apart from minimal maintenance, dry cleaning, and storage costs. "In percentage terms," Mr. Stephens said, "the profit is in the rentals."

What's more, with the rental of baccalaureate gowns running from $7 to $20 and the disposable keepers starting at $8.75 and going up to $30, it is generally cheaper for the consumer to rent a gown than to buy one. Nonetheless the trend is moving steadily toward the purchased throwaway type. Sixty percent of C. E. Ward's business in academic gowns this season is in "one trippers," and according to Mr. Stephens, they're having a very good year.

Jostens Inc. will sell more than a million disposable gowns this season; they will rent some 150,000. Since acquiring a cap and gown division just 10 years ago, the Minneapolis company has doubled its manufacturing facilities to keep up with the demand.

While most college and university graduates will still wear black robes this year, more and more high schools and junior colleges are moving toward gowns in school colors. "It looks like a rainbow in that factory," said Judy Schuster, Jostens' manager of employee communications. Jostens makes its disposable gowns in 18 different colors and sells the whole outfit for less than $10.

"It's a good buy for a family," said Janet Waterman, the director of the student activities center in one upstate New York high school. Even though Waterman's supplier, Collegiate Cap and Gown, intends their one-trippers to be just that, she's found over the years that with careful washing all the children in a family can wear the same one. "More and more students are turning them in if there are no other kids in the family, so someone the next year who cannot afford to buy a gown can have one free. It's a good experience in recycling," she said.

And then there's the sentimental value emphasized by the trade names of these gowns — "Souvenir," "Treasure," "Keeper," and "Keenkeeper." "It's kind of like a wedding dress to them," said Michael Bovi, the bookstore manager of one New York state college. "While the value of the robe as an article of clothing is minimal, the achievement value is tremendous. And if the kids don't want to keep 'em, the parents usually do." According to Mr. Bovi, few end up in the trash, at least not right away.

Happy Birthday Thackeray's

Move over Brooklyn Bridge, Thackeray's Table and Tap, in Woburn, is celebrating its fifth birthday!

The popular dining and drinking establishment, located inside the Woburn Mall, is planning a full week of activities, beginning Sunday, June 12th, to mark its fifth year of operation. The big birthday bash will be highlighted by the Grolsh hot air balloon, which will be providing rides on Thursday, June 16th, and Friday, June 17th, weather permitting.

"We hope to give away two hundred rides on the Grolsh hot air balloon on those two days," says Steve Beigbender, part-owner and manager of the Woburn Thackeray's. "There will also be a lot of celebrating going on inside the restaurant too."

We'll get back to the week-long celebration later. First, a capsule history of this fast-growing, Victorian-style restaurant chain:

Thackeray's Table and Tap, in Woburn, is just one of four Thackeray's restaurants. "We were started eight years ago, in Walpole, by three local businessmen who were looking to create a comfortable, moderately priced restaurant that would be a step above the typical pub," Steve Beigbender relates.

The Walpole restaurant took off the moment it opened for business, and one year later a new Thackeray's got off the ground inside the Billerica Mall.

A Thackeray's Table and Tap in Waltham rounds out the current four-store restaurant chain. Steve Beigbender has been associated with the chain and its principal owners since his college days at Northeastern University. "I was tending bar at the Cask and Flagon, which is a college campus bar in Boston that is also owned by the same fellows," Steve goes on. "When the Walpole store opened I went to work for them as one of the managers. Then plans got underway for the Woburn store, and I had an opportunity to become a managing partner."

Anyone who dines regularly at the Woburn Thackeray's knows that Steve has worked hard with his employees to establish a fruitful relationship between their restaurant and the city of Woburn.

"I'm happy enough with Woburn that I've bought a house here," he says.

As other Woburn restaurant owners have discovered, running a dining establishment in that city isn't all roses and applause. For instance, trying to cope with the cumbersome laws that force patrons to be seated when drinking and a restaurant employee to carry a drink from the bar to a table took some getting used to, for both the patrons and the restaurant employees. (The laws limit the serving of alcoholic beverages to seating capacity; to assure that these laws will be obeyed, it's necessary to serve patrons only when they are seated.)

Steve Beigbender and his employees, along with the patrons of their restaurant, have learned to take the local blue laws in stride. "Yes, they have been cumbersome, but we have to take them as a fact of life," he says.

The most important fact of life at Thackeray's Table and Tap is the broad variety of delicious meals that are offered on their menu, including both steak and seafood dishes.

Steve elaborates further, "We also offer daily specials that are a very good value."

A delivery truck brings fresh fish to Thackeray's three times a week. "Our customers are guaranteed only the freshest seafood available will be served to them," Steve notes.

Thackeray's also has a terrific Sunday brunch offering, which features everything from bacon and eggs to eggs benedict.

"On Sundays we also have a breakfast buffet, which is a compliment to our regular brunch menu items. The buffet includes things like quiche, hors d'oeuvres and fresh fruit."

Brunch hours are between 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Regular store hours are from 11:30 a.m. to 12 midnight daily.

None of this would be possible, Steve indicates, if he did not have a top-notch management team under him. He notes that unlike similar restaurant chains with a high rate of management turnover, his managers have been with him since the store opened for business.

"This is important," Steve adds, "because our customers get to know the managers, and they come into the restaurant because they also like the recognition they receive. They like being known as regulars."

The management team consists of Ada Commaratta, Alma Elkins and John Glynn, who is also the head bartender.

Getting back to the Thackeray's fifth anniversary party, Steve Beigbender points out,

"Everybody is invited to attend our week long celebration."

As indicated, the Grolsh hot air balloon will highlight the events, but patrons will be in for more fun inside the restaurant.

"When they enter the restaurant they will receive a ticket. We'll be raffling off Thackeray's t-shirts, Red Sox tickets and promotional mirrors from various beer and liquor companies that will be super for a home bar."

In addition to the door prizes, free hor d'oeuvres will be served daily throughout the week long celebration.

"This week we are also kicking off our clam bake," he reminds his customers, "which will be taking place every Tuesday and Wednesday nights throughout the summer. This includes lobster, steamers, a salad and corn on the cob."

The fifth anniversary celebration at Thackeray's Table and Tap, in Woburn, is shaping up to be a "don't miss" event that'll kick off an entire summer of fine dining and drinking at the local restaurant.

Parade of Events

BIG FIRE ENGINE MEET

The public is invited to a special display of the most up-to-date fire engines, pumpers, ladders and support vehicles which will be brought together for a fire engine meet in the parking lot of the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Road, Route 2A, in Lexington, Mass. on Saturday, June 4, from 1-5 p.m. (rain date is Sunday, June 5). Thirteen Greater Boston fire departments are participating and admission is free.

Coordinated by Chief John Bergeron of the Lexington Fire Department, this one-time only showing of equipment is being held at the museum as a special event in conjunction with the museum's exhibit, "Heroes of the Flames: American Volunteer Firemen," which runs through February 19, 1984. The exhibit tells the story of America's early firefighters and shows antique fire equipment while the outdoor display focuses on today's professional firemen and the equipment they work with to battle fires.

Greater Boston fire departments participating with their equipment are: Malden — Tower Ladder; Woburn —

Snorkel; Bedford — Rear Mounted Aerial Ladder; Waltham — Tractor Trailer Aerial; Arlington — Mid Ship Aerial; Lincoln — Brush Fire Truck; Hanscom Air Force Base — Crash Truck; Reading — Foam Truck; Lynn — Squire Pumper; Burlington — Structural Attack Engine; Concord — Mini Pumper; Winchester — Lighting Unit; Lexington — Ambulance. Lexington will also demonstrate the "Jaws of Life," on a junk car at 2 p.m. The "Jaws of Life" is used by fire rescue personnel to extricate victims of car accidents from crushed vehicles. Members of fire departments will be present. For more information, call 861-6560.

CHEERLEADERS CAMP

A training school for High School Cheerleaders will be held at Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., July 17-20. Jumps, pom-pom routines, new yells, partner stunts, crowd leadership, a variety show, and a giant pep rally are some of the activities planned. These workshops will feature the staff of Nation-Wide Cheerleaders Association under the direction of Ron and Jean Zucchelli, founders. Cheerleaders from several states will attend.

For information, call (412) 349-2017 or write to Nation-Wide Cheerleaders Association, 2719 Melloney Lane, Indiana, Pa. 15701.

VEGETARIAN NUTRITION

Beginning Tuesday, June 14, a two-part series featuring the benefits of a vegetarian diet will be held at New England Memorial Hospital.

Taught by a registered dietitian, classes will be held on two consecutive Tuesday evenings, from 7-9 p.m., in the Home Economics Room at the Greater Boston Academy on the hospital grounds.

Participants will learn how to cut down on cholesterol intake and save money on food while trying new and tasteful entrees.

Emphasis is placed on versatility of menu planning by including a variety of legumes and grains into the diet.

Sponsored by the health education department, the program includes films, recipes and samples as part of the learning experience. A $20 registration fee covers the cost of materials and food used, as well as the reference book entitled "Laurel's Kitchen".

For more information, or to register, call Health Education, NEMH, 665-1740, ext. 426.

COUNTRY - WESTERN DANCE

The Sgt. Harold O. Young Post 2394, VFW, 14 Chipman Avenue, Melrose Highlands (off Franklin St.) will hold its last Country-Western Dance of this season on Saturday, June 4. The dance will run from 8 p.m. until midnight, featuring music by the well-known local C&W band, "Country Road."

A $3 donation will be asked at the door ($5 per couple). Table reservations (for parties of 8-10) are urged and may be made by calling the Post at least three days in advance. For further information, call the Melrose VFW Post at 665-9775. (There will be no C&W dances during the summer.)

LOWELL MUSEUM

The Lowell Museum proudly announces the return of its contemporary weaving show. Entitled "Weaver's Palette," the exhibition of over 25 New England weavers will be held, this year, at the Whistler House, 243 Worthen Street, Lowell, Mass. The show will run Saturday, June 4 through Friday, June 24, and be open to the public Tuesday through Saturday, 1:00-4:00 p.m. Admission is $1.00.

A special "Champagne and Strawberries" reception will open the exhibition on Friday, June 3, 1983, 7:00-9:00 p.m. Tickets are $5.00 per person. For further information call 459-6782.

EMBROIDERERS' GUILD

The Boston Chapter of The Embroiderers' Guild of America will hold an evening business meeting on June 8 from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. There will be an informal presentation of reports and items discussed at the previously held Annual meeting. There will also be a "show and tell" session. This meeting will take place at the Wellesley Community Center. Please register by June 1. For further information call Beth Cohen (617) 527-3532 or Elizabeth Brown (617) 877-1827.

STOP SMOKING

June 12 begins the next in a continuous series of stop-smoking programs at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, reports Randy Jewell, director of Health Education at the hospital, and coordinator of the program. The group meets for 5 consecutive evenings, from 7-8:30 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria.

Called the 5-Day plan to Stop Smoking, the program has helped over 17 million people quit and has a success rate of over 80 percent, according to Jewell.

Each participant receives a computerized "smokers profile" based on their smoking history. The program also features group therapy, films, lectures, and detailed instructions on how to quit. Registration is $35. Call Health Education at NEMH for more information (665-1740).

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

Summer Term classes in English as a Second Language begin on June 27 at the International Institute of Boston. Registration for the Summer Term is June 20, 21 and 22 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. All levels are taught and some special interest classes are provided. Fees for the classes are comparatively low as the Institute is a non-profit organization.

Through the Institute's classes, students of different backgrounds can develop their language skills while increasing their awareness of American culture. All aspects of English skills are taught by professionally trained and experienced instructors, including conversation, listening comprehension, structure, and reading and writing.

The Institute is partially funded by the United Way and offers comprehensive social services to immigrants, refugees, and other interested parties. Services include English as a Second Language classes, information and referral, immigration legal counseling, and refugee resettlement. These services are open to the public. For more information, come to the International Institute at 287 Commonwealth Avenue in Boston or call 536-1081.

INDIAN SUMMER

Registration for Drumlins Farm's Indian Summer program is now in progress. The program offers students going into the 5th and 6th grades an opportunity to be part of our Indian Family and learn to live in close harmony with nature. Learn native songs and cheers, fashion leather items, shape bowls or cups of clay and prepare a pit for firing pottery. Investigate the wildlife on the sanctuary and meet the Audubon Ark wild animals. Cook a native American dinner over an open fire, locate summer constellations, explore the mysteries of the night and hear legends around the campfire. All this and more when you overnight in the tipi one evening. For more information call 259-9807.

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

Ms. Anna Hinton, the newcomer's director for the Middlesex Chapter of Parents Without Partners and her committee will hold an Orientation for new members on Monday, June 6th and 20th at the home of Ms. Linda Wylie in Medford, Mass. at 8 p.m. During the event, Ms. Hinton will explain what the Middlesex Chapter has to offer the single parent who resides in Suffolk, South Essex, and Southeastern Middlesex counties. Any Single Parents in these areas who would like to attend one of the orientations can phone the main office at 322-4603 or Ms. Hinton at 884-6525.

BIKE TRIP

The Ipswich River Watershed Association invites you to join them for a bike trip along the Ipswich River and its environs, on Sunday, June 12, at 1 P.M. Those participating are asked to meet at the entrance to

Handgun control: both sides post losses, wins in ongoing battle

By George B. Merry
Staff writer of
The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

The outcome of the battle over handgun control remains uncertain, but those calling the shots on both sides are claiming significant gains in recent months.

Leaders of groups dedicated to curbing or eliminating possession of handguns were pleased about a federal appeals court decision Feb. 9 that upheld a ban on handguns in Morton Grove, Ill.

Gun-control activists also were happy with the results of an April 12 election in Morton Grove. The community rejected four candidates for the village board who were committed to wiping the handgun-prohibition ordinance off the books.

Similarly, those in the anti-handgun ranks were pleased that San Francisco mayor Dianne Feinstein survived an April 26 recall ballot — spearheaded by those who criticized her support of an ordinance outlawing private ownership of concealable firearms.

Though hardly elated over these developments — especially the failure to overturn the Morton Grove measure — gun-ownership activists are not about to quit.

Warren Cassidy of the National Rifle Association (NRA) said the day of the February court decision is "a day that will live in infamy." He hints that the 2-to-1 verdict by the federal panel in Chicago will be appealed to the US Supreme Court.

On the plus side for the gun-ownership forces, the NRA and other organizations in the last few months have successfully pushed through laws in at least four states to take the gun-control issue out of the hands of local governments.

These statutes enacted in Arizona, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Washington state specifically prohibit individual cities or towns from imposing local gun controls. These laws reserve that authority for the state exclusively.

The Washington measure, signed May 17 by Republican Gov. John Spellman, stems in part from efforts by a Seattle citizen group to get stricter handgun controls in their city. Foes maintained that such a move was an invasion of state authority.

The measure is more restrictive than some members of the gun lobby would like. It sets up a longer waiting period — to allow time to investigate the applicant — before a permit to carry a concealed weapon is issued. In addition, it prohibits anyone who has been convicted of a fire-arms-related felony or a drug abuse charge, or who has a record of mental disorder, from possessing a handgun.

But these provisions were not adamantly opposed by pro-gun forces, since the restrictions in no way interfere with what they consider the "law-abiding citizen's inalienable right" to buy or carry firearms.

And the new Washington statute does include specific language which prevents individual communities from enacting stricter gun-control measures or an outright handgun ban.

In addition to the three states that recently adopted such measures, Alabama and West Virginia last year similarly acted to give state lawmakers the exclusive authority to regulate the purchase, possession, and use of all firearms. Eight other states — California, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania — had earlier enacted such "preemption laws."

Groups that oppose handgun control say they prefer to wage their battles on the state and national fronts rather than from community to community.

On the other hand, groups that are trying to restrict or eliminate the private possession of pistols and other small firearms generally have been more successful at the local level.

The NRA drive to thwart gun restrictions through state preemption laws is of particular concern to leaders of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns, says Paul Lavrakas, field director of the Washington-based coalition.

He notes that some gun-control activists, like those in Colorado, had successfully combatted NRA-backed legislation to outlaw local ordinances that would restrict weapons. Mr. Lavrakas says "time is needed" to build support at the state level for stricter handgun laws.

Efforts to enact gun-control statutes, especially those that would ban the purchase or ownership of such weapons, have been frustrated by provisions in state constitutions which guarantee a citizen's right to possess and bear arms. Thirty-nine states have such provisions in their constitutions, according to the NRA. The 11 exceptions, most of which have preemption laws, are California, Delaware, Iowa, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Several Massachusetts communities have been constitutionally blocked from passing gun-control ordinances. Proposals from the towns of Brookline and Lincoln, seeking permission to impose tougher handgun restrictions, were shot down recently by state lawmakers.

Meanwhile, at the nation's capital, the NRA is pushing for new legislation to ease regulations on gun sales and licensing. But the outcome of these efforts to roll back provisions of the current law governing firearms (the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968) is uncertain — despite promised backing from President Reagan, who reiterated his support May 6 at an NRA convention.

Those favoring tougher gun laws are alarmed by the increased number of small handguns in private possession across the nation. In New York City alone, nearly 9,300 applications for handgun licenses were filed last year, according to police records. Records show the 1982 figure was almost 1,000 more than the previous year.

Dogs have been domesticated for 10,000 years, cats for no more than 5,000 years and probably much less.

CRYSTAL COIN officers, experts in the field of investment in rare coins and in gold and silver bullion, shown in their Wakefield headquarters are: (l-r) Bob Goldberg, Rick Rigazio and Ron D'Amico.

Many turn to 'Hard assets', investing in precious metals

WAKEFIELD — "It's like a meteor going by," says Crystal Coin Division's Robert Goldberg of the rare gold and silver coin investment market.

And many investors, he says, from private individuals to insurance companies, banks, and financial planners, are hitching lines to the "shooting star."

Why? A major reason, says Philip Greco, general manager of Crystal Coin Inc., is that "the international monetary situation is very scary...a lot of people are very worried" about whether their paper will be worth anything for long.

So, he says, they've turned to "hard assets": gold and silver — and rare coins. Gold and silver bullion have enticed many a speculator; that's common knowledge. What many people don't know is that rare gold and silver coins are "conservative investments — like waterfront property," he says.

Goldberg, an account manager, explains: "There are only so many coins available. Of a certain mintage, out of 500 left, maybe 100 are available, and as people purchase these, the price goes up and up. Many will be completely off the market in 10 years. Unlike diamonds, there are no more to mine...it's a self-sustaining system."

The system has a track record as bright as an investment-grade coin, he says: an average return of 26.8 per cent per year over the past 30 years. And figures for the past decade are much higher, he says.

Some Crystal Coin clients have gone "from rags to riches in 10 years," says Goldberg. "Lots of money can be made."

As investors discover this, rare gold and silver coins are making a transition from "sideline" to "mainstream" investments, says Greco.

At Crystal Coin, coins have been a "mainstream" for three decades. What started as a collectors' shop has become the hub of a worldwide network of a "couple hundred" financial planning agents who represent the firm, says Goldberg.

The collectors' shop, located in the 80-year-old Odd Fellows Building, is still going strong, says Greco. In fact, he says, it's the largest of its kind in New England.

But the focus of Crystal Coin these days is down the street, at 385 Main St. There, an office staffed by 27 employees keeps tabs on the world market in gold and silver, in rare coin and bullion form, using computers and the latest electronic communications systems.

Watching the market is clearly vital — but so is educating the client, says Goldberg. The client must know what to expect of his or her investment, how to protect it, and a little about the market, he says.

Greco says, "We show people how to be investors without being collectors," by discovering their particular needs and filling them. For most clients, "four-corner balanced portfolios" prove best, including gold and silver bullion as well as coins, he says, for diversification.

No matter whether the client speculates or aims to build a retirement fund with an investment in rare coins, he or she enjoys many advantages over those who invest in other commodities, say Goldberg and Greco. Advantages include liquidity, tax benefits, and lack of troublesome government regulations, they say.

And Crystal Coin offers many assurances to investors in rare coins, including certifications by the American Numismatic Association and a buyback policy considered "unique to the industry."

"We lead the way in gold and silver investment in New England," says Greco.

Commencement can be a time of stress for the teen graduate

BOSTON — As graduation speakers across the country remind their audiences that "commencement" means "beginning," most high school graduates know that for them, something is ending. "The changes that graduating teenagers face are particularly dramatic, because they involve a passage from the familiar to the unknown," says Robert Masland, M.D., chief of the Division of Adolescent and Young Adult Medicine at The Children's Hospital.

Adolescents and young adults comprise one-third of the patients who are hospitalized at Children's or who participate in its many outpatient clinics and programs. Dr. Masland and his staff also provide consultation in several high schools.

"Whether young people are going away to college or living at home to attend a nearby campus, beginning a new job, getting married, traveling, or staying put while many of their friends move on, the changes faced by most high school graduates are stressful ones," says Dr. Masland. "While life's milestones are stressful at any age," he says, "only at this age is stress the result of not wanting to grow up or trying to grow up too fast."

Graduating seniors suddenly find themselves in the driver's seat, literally and symbolically, and are expected to direct the course of their lives. "The adult world they are about to enter demands some significant decisions from teenagers who may lack the confidence and experience necessary to make them," says Dr. Masland.

In a world of high unemployment and increasing specialization, teenagers today must make career choices at an earlier age than they did a decade ago, according to Dr. Masland. "Even if they change their minds later on, they must at least have an answer prepared for the many times they are asked what their plans are," he says.

"At a time when the decision maker may also be experiencing sexual problems, family problems, or identity problems, it is very hard to make a responsible career choice," says Dr. Masland. "Most 18-year-olds are preoccupied with worries about their physical attractiveness, sexuality, money, family relationships, and friendships."

Some teens respond to stress by refusing to grow up, which can be tragically illustrated in girls, according to Dr. Masland, by anorexia nervosa. "Refusing to eat is one way for young women to maintain a childlike body," he says. Other teenagers try to grow up too fast by using drugs or alcohol, marrying hastily, or becoming young parents themselves.

What can parents of teenagers do to alleviate the stress their children might feel at this time of year? "Stress need not always be diagnosed and modified," says

Dr. Masland, "just understood. The adolescents who seem to do best as adults are those who accept the fact that they can't be teenagers forever. When they look back on these 'best of times' and worst of times, they will recall a period when they might have been very vulnerable, but were also very alive."

VA has its problems too

At the turn of the century a popular song was "My Name Is Morgan" (But It Ain't J.P.). The song went on to tell about a young girl who mistakenly thought her boyfriend was one of the world's richest men. Well, 80 years later and in the computer age, the Veterans Administration occasionally has problems with names, too.

The Morgans aren't big problems, but others are. Consider this: VA computers have the names of over 304,000 Smiths, 202,000 Johnsons, 149,000 Williamses, and 144,000 Jones. The agency even lists 50 Ronald Reagans and over 100 Harry Walters. (He's the new VA Administrator.) These names become a problem when one of these ex-GIs write to the agency and don't include their all important military serial number, social security number or VA claim number. Now it isn't necessarily impossible to locate a veteran's file without these numbers, but with over 34 million names of former servicemen and women in VA files, including your number will simplify things — and greatly speed up the answer.

So remember, if you contact the agency about your VA benefits — past, present or potential — please be prepared to provide an identifying number — your military, social security or VA claim number. You'll be doing both VA and yourself a favor.

Can you pass this short Red Cross health test?

According to the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, countless lives have been saved throughout the country because millions of people have taken Red Cross health and safety courses. Through the skills and training learned in Red Cross courses, these people have also helped prevent accidents and promote individual well-being.

Along with keeping your family healthy, how much do you know about first aid, accident prevention, and home nursing? Would you be prepared to handle things effectively if someone in your family got sick?

Red Cross wants you to know how effective you would be at identifying and preventing common home emergencies. Take this short quiz and compare your answers with those provided at the end.

1. Temperature should be taken under the following conditions: (a) Whenever a person complains of feeling ill or shows sign of illness. (b) Whenever there is a headache, pain in chest or abdomen, sore throat, chills, vomiting, diarrhea, skin rash. (c) During illness, once or twice a day. (d) All of the above.

2. How long do you hold the thermometer in place when taking an oral temperature? (a) 1-2 minutes. (b) 2-4 minutes. (c) 5-7 minutes. (d) 7-9 minutes.

3. The normal pulse rate for an adult at rest is: (a) 50 to 70 beats per minute. (b) 70 to 90 beats per minute. (c) 90 to 110 beats per minute.

4. Proper first aid for a first degree burn is: (a) Cold water. (b) Butter or margarine. (c) Application of ice directly to the burn.

5. What kinds of wounds should be washed? (a) Only small wounds. (b) Only large, dirty wounds. (c) All wounds. (d) No wounds.

6. If a compress becomes soaked with blood: (a) Replace the first compress with a new one. (b) Use your bare hand instead of a compress. (c) Add a new compress on top of the first one. (d) Remove the compress and squeeze a pressure point.

7. Your doctor has ordered you to stay on a bland diet. He probably wants you to restrict: (a) Milk, cream, eggs. (b) Pureed vegetables and fruits. (c) Tender meats. (d) Coffee and tea.

8. The person who must remain in bed must be moved frequently to help: (a) Circulation. (b) Muscle tone. (c) Prevent pressure sores. (d) All of the above.

Over 300 tools for autos

You may find it difficult to believe, but there are well over 300 different non-power hand tools available on the market specifically intended for servicing cars. At least thirty of these tools are for servicing brakes only; the remaining hundreds of other tools, each with a special configuration of its own, are used to service other parts of the car, such as the carburetor, cylinders, drive train, valves, shock absorbers, windshield wipers, and the list goes on and on. Some of the tools are shaped to reach into difficult to get into places and remove special fittings while other tools, such as the slide hammer puller will make the removal of a flange type rear axle from a car a relatively easy job.

If you're a weekend D-I-Y auto mechanic who enjoys working on the car in the driveway or a professional mechanic who uses tools all day, safety begins well before the car ignition is turned on; it begins with using the proper tool for the job and using it safely.

"Making do" with a poor assortment of inadequate tools simply will not do, points out the Hand Tools Institute, a trade association of American and Canadian hand tool manufacturers. Approximately a million persons are injured each year in a product-related cases and "making do" with incorrect tools is one way of risking serious personal injury as well as possibly damaging expensive equipment. This could be devastating if it's a hard-to-replace auto part. Think the job through completely; knowing how to do the work is only half of the job, the other half is using the proper tools the safe way.

Remember how easily the Keystone Kops silent flicks made a steering wheel come off the steering column? It's not that easy today; as a matter of fact, it's a fairly tough job even with tools, unless you use a small rather unobtrusive looking tool with three cap screws, called a steering wheel pulley. Equally important as using the proper tool is using it safely. An important safety tip to remember when using the steering wheel pulley is never to use an impact wrench to drive or loosen the cap screws for any reason — serious injury could result.

Another important reason for using the proper tool in addition to saving considerable time and preventing injury is saving money. An example is installing a new thermostat or water pump, a common occurrence that most car owners will experience several times during the course of owning cars. Whether you do the job or have it done professionally at a service station, considerable money can be saved by using a relatively inexpensive tool called a hose pinch-off plier. The plier is designed to pinch off the hose to prevent the coolant from draining during replacement of the parts; at five dollars a gallon of coolant, the tool reduces the repair bill up to fifty percent. So next time, whoever does the job, be certain the pinch-off plier is used.

Then there is the matter of disturbing that perfectly adjusted carburetor that gives you faultless starting and maximum MPG, for the purpose of increasing your engine's RPMs. Many D-I-Y and some professionals correct the RPM problem by removing the air cleaner and disturbing the carburetor setting. This routine is not necessary. HTI points out, if a throttle adjustment tool is used. The TAT makes it possible to adjust the RPM in most cars without disturbing the air cleaner or carburetor — reducing work time and load measurably.

The Hand Tools Institute, located at 25 North Broadway, Tarrytown, New York 10591, has an educational wall chart available for $1.00, that illustrates over 100 automotive tools and when to use them.

Emma Bailey: reflects on life as America's first woman auctioneer

For nearly 20 years Emma Bailey conducted auctions in Vermont. Although she had to break through stereotypes as a woman in the '50s, she achieved a national reputation from her success in auctioneering.

By David Hewett
Special to The Christian Science Monitor
Brattleboro, Vt.

She's nothing at all like the popular conception of a country auctioneer. Many of us have seen them at work — barrel-chested men with gaudy shirts, assertive manners, and loud voices.

Emma Bailey isn't like that. She didn't resemble any of those stereotypes when she first banged a gavel and called out "Sold!" on May 12, 1950, and she's not like that today. She remembers that first sale well, though. It was a 50-year-old rocking chair, and it brought $2.50.

America's first woman auctioneer is seated in a comfortable black-walnut easy chair in the pleasant Victorian living room of her neat, white-painted house on Western Avenue in Brattleboro, Vt.

One can hear a bit of Vermont, Connecticut and New Jersey accents, as she talks about her career. "I took up auctioneering as a way to meet a specific need and not have to leave the house five days a week," she says. "Oh, I could still auction if I wanted to, but I'd rather not. I keep turning them down. If I do it for one, I must do them for all."

She took to the auction block in 1950 for reasons familiar to any one-paycheck family of today: a growing, hungry family; a house that ate money; and the effects of inflation.

She's barely over five feet tall, dressed in stylish wools. Her slightly gray-flecked hair is cut closely to her head. The eyes watching you are clear and bright. Vermonters have a phrase for grandmothers like Emma Bailey: sharp as a tack.

For nearly 20 years she conducted auctions at her barn off Black Mountain Road in Brattleboro. She achieved a national reputation from that operation, wrote a book about it ("Sold to the Lady in the Green Hat," Dodd, Mead, 1962), and retired at the peak of her career.

It was no easy task to break a sex barrier in the early '50s. Now that it's a common sight to see a woman in nearly every occupation, it's easy to forget how difficult it was for the pioneers.

Her first auction was blocked for nearly a month, because a male auctioneer decided she was breaking a zoning law. Once she started her business, there were other tricks to use.

"I lost a very good auction one time, because this male auctioneer and I both knew of this sale coming up. He went to the bank and said 'Well, I have a family to support, she only has a husband.' I didn't get the sale."

She took to the auction block in 1950 for reasons familiar to any one-paycheck family today: a growing hungry family, a house that ate money, and the effects of inflation.

By Roger Katz

Vermonters claim Emma Bailey is 'sharp as a tack'

"This male auctioneer used sex in reverse to get that sale," she continues. He used it many times. I never used it. I didn't want the sex to be the tool."

She pauses and puts her opinions into the present tense. "Men sell cars; women sell cars. There's no reason I can't sell antiques and understand them as well as a man."

There was national prejudice, too. When she became the first woman to be admitted to the National Auctioneers Association, in 1952, she found it less than supportive. When in 1960 a reporter queried the association about opportunities for women in the business, Mrs. Bailey heard the answer was that, although a woman had tried auctioneering in Vermont, she had found it too hard and quit.

That was news to Emma Bailey; she was very active that year.

By the 1960s she was well on her way to becoming a Vermont institution. She sold antiques, household goods, a survey with a fringe on top, farm implements and tools, books and diaries, and valuable pieces along with the junk.

Her advice to prospective sellers is still valid: "Whenever it was possible, I'd encourage the family to not attend the auction. I'd explain: 'You might think that table should bring $150, but you forget about all that junk from the back pantry and cellar — all that junk you were going to pay someone to take to the dump. That's going to maybe bring in an extra $300. So don't fret too much about something you think should bring an extra $25, when the things you would have thrown out net you $300.' I'd try to get them to see it in that light."

She attends few auctions these days — the last one was two years ago — because she doesn't care for some of the current practices.

"We used to do the real country auctions. People were always happy about that," Mrs. Bailey recalls. "They used to say, 'Well, if I come here two weeks from now, I won't see the same old stuff again.'"

That's an oblique reference to an auctioneer's practice of buying merchandise outright, pretending to sell it to a fictitious bidder if the price isn't high enough for an auctioneer's liking, and then reselling the same piece at a later auction for a better price.

Emma Bailey is proud of her record: "I'm aware of ethics. That's the only thing connected to auctions I'm aware of. I feel it's a business that's been very low in ethics and somebody has got to start somewhere. I don't want to be the guardian angel, but those are my ethics."

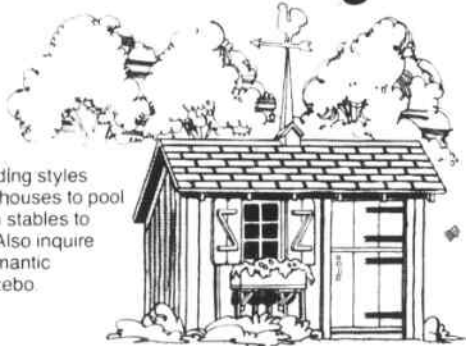

Is she forgotten by her followers?

"We still get letters from people, beginning in March and April, from way off in Oshkosh and such, saying: 'When I was a little girl, I used to come to your auctions, bring a picnic lunch, and sit under the trees during the sale. I'd like to come and bring my children. When are you having your next one?' I have to write back and say, 'I'm sorry but I'm retired now.'"

She has a comment about retiring when she did: "It's like the old saying: Leave a party while you still want to dance."

Calcium important for adults

We all have heard how calcium builds strong bones. But when we reach our 20s, we probably think our bone-building days are over. Not so, warn the experts.

Dr. Robert Recker, M.D., of Creighton University's metabolic research unit discusses loss of bone tissue, or osteoporosis, in a recent Contemporary Nutrition article. The newsletter is written for health professionals and is published by General Mills, Inc. Osteoporosis is a serious health problem, especially in women, that makes bone fractures more frequent and costs millions in treatment.

Bone Tissue Grows During Adulthood
We usually attain full height in our early 20s. But surprisingly, the amount of bone tissue (that is, "bone mass") keeps right on increasing up to about age 35. In fact, we gain from 15 to 20 percent of our bone mass between the ages of 30 and 35.

After that time, bone mass slowly decreases throughout the rest of our lives. This is nothing to worry about unless our bones actually become too thin, something that frequently happens in people over 65. Too often the result is chipped hip bones and broken arms.

Dr. Recker explains that we can greatly retard the reduction in bone mass caused by aging. Because the rate of reduction doubles for women after menopause, one method to retard the process is to take estrogen. A far simpler and safer method Dr. Recker suggests is to increase the amount of calcium women consume in their diets. Before menopause, women should have a daily intake of about 1000 milligrams of calcium, about 1500 milligrams afterwards.

Calcium Important To All Ages
People who live in areas where diets traditionally are high in calcium have more bone mass at age 35. The more bone tissue the body has when the natural reduction process begins, the better it can withstand the process itself. Recker concludes that calcium is not only important for us as children when we grow, but also as young adults when our bone mass increases and as older adults when we begin to lose bone tissue.

Scientific studies also have reinforced findings that exercise, especially walking, slows bone mass loss. And those familiar vices, cigarette smoking and excessive use of alcohol, accelerate the process.

The message from new research is clear: Adults need calcium. We make no bones without it.

Ask the gardeners

By Doc and Katy Abraham

We would like some privacy from a public building on adjoining property. There is a chain-link fence on the property line. Could you suggest an attractive, fast-growing, hardy vine to cover it? We prefer something with blooms.

We are fortunate to have such a vine, carried by nurseries in Canada and the United States.

Silver Lace-Vine, or Fleece-Vine, (Polygonum auberti) will tolerate temperature as low as minus 30 degrees F. (minus 34 degrees C.) and will thrive in the heat of the southern United States, excepting south Florida and a few hot spots in California and Texas.

With sunshine and a well-drained soil, it will reward you with bowers of white, fragrant flowers.

Planted every 15 feet, they will likely cover your fence in one or two seasons. After reaching the size you want, prune it after it flowers each year.

When we visited friends in Virginia last summer we noticed a beautiful mulberry tree with white berries. I've tried in vain to locate one in nursery catalogs. Do you know where the white variety can be found? Also, would it be hardy in our area (South Dakota)?

Mulberry trees can have red, white, or black fruit. To our surprise our supply of nursery catalogs list only the black varieties. We have several white ones that attract a large number of species of birds, which never bother our cherries because of them. Some fruit growers use mulberry trees for this purpose. They're extremely hardy, growing all over the United States except in the semi-tropical areas. Suggest you ask your friend to send you some seeds from the fruit. Be sure they are dry, then store them in the refrigerator (at 40 degrees F.) for three months. They could then be planted in pots or in a coldframe, where they should sprout if soil is kept moist. They could be planted in a permanent location in late spring next year, after they've been left in a coldframe all winter. Berries can be used to make jam or jellies if a little something tart is used with them.

At a little restaurant specializing in soup and sandwiches we had lovage soup. It was so delicious we would like to grow our own. Where can we get seeds, when should they be sown, and how big a space do we need?

Seeds of Levisticum officinale can be sown in late summer, or started plants can be planted in spring or early summer. Plant roots need to be kept moist, but they need a well-drained, loose soil that has some organic matter.

Once established, lovage produces a good crop of stalks, leaves, and seeds each year. Ours occupies about 2 square feet of our garden and grows 4 to 5 feet tall.

Leaves and stems have a strong, celerylike flavor that is a bit sweeter than celery (good in soups and stews). However, the seeds are not as sweet as celery seeds, but more aromatic.

Seeds are available from: Geo. W. Park Seed Company, Greenwood, S.C. 29646 and Nichols Garden Nursery, 1190 N. Pacific Hwy., Albany, Ore. 97321.

Parents and children join the computer age together

Increasing emphasis is being placed on teaching children computer skills. Some parents, wanting to keep up, have been joining their children's classes.

By Deborah Churchman
Special to The Christian Science Monitor

"Most parents I talk to have this gut feeling that their kids should be computer literate — whatever that means," says a woman who runs a computer camp for children in the Washington, D.C., area. "They tell me they feel like dinosaurs in their own age, not understanding these machines."

It's a common feeling, and an accurate one, says Rod Uveges, who teaches a "computer comfort" class to parents of his 7th- and 8th-grade students in Arlington, Va. "These little machines are creeping in everywhere," he tells them, "and will probably be used in nearly every job by the time your kid hits the job market."

The dinosaur feeling is easy to shake, Mr. Uveges says, in six to eight hands-on sessions with computers. "You can read about these things, but it doesn't make much sense unless you actually use them," he says. His course, which raises money for the computer kitty in the Arlington schools, developed in response to parents who told him: "What do you mean, 'My kid's taking computers'? I don't even know what they look like!"

The course, similar to many such comfort or "literacy" courses offered throughout the country, takes "before computer" parents through:

- How a computer works — how to feed, store, and retrieve information.
- How to use software, the commercial tapes or discs containing various programs.
- How to program.

Mr. Uveges broaches this last topic by showing parents a simple program, and then asking them to improve on it. "Then they learn that when the guy downstairs says, 'The computer won't do that,' it means he doesn't want to redo the program to make the computer do that."

The teacher also runs a kind of hardware show for parents, highlighting the advantages, disadvantages, and prices of various home computers. "They always ask me, 'Which one is best?'" he says. "It's like asking, 'Which kind of car should I buy?'"

Parents "understand the keyboard — we don't have to spend a lot of time showing them how to make a quote or find a letter — and they seem to understand the purpose of a program quickly," Mr. Uveges says. But he has a harder time teaching them than their children. "They don't want to look dumb," he says — a real inhibition to quick learning.

El Horowitz, Montessori School, Annandale, Va. By Charles K. Crockett

Taking risks is a key to innovative programming

Electronic Learning Facilitators, a three-woman firm in Bethesda, Md., gets over this hurdle by teaching children and adults together. "We introduce the machines via the child," says instructor Deborah Blank, who adds that parents and children, typically, have different responses to the computer.

"We run a completely nonthreatening program at the beginning that's based on the old game, Hangman," she says. In this game, the player is supposed to guess a word in a certain category (like presidents or birds) with a certain number of letters. "The kids will start throwing out letters at random, while the parents will try to analyze the word's length and make a more educated guess," she explains.

The children's willingness to take risks and make mistakes is the key to more innovative programming, says Barbara Beam of the Computer Learning Tree in Annandale, Va.

"The kids learn to use their mistakes, or to recover from them and make something better," she says, "and I like that — our society really needs that philosophy."

Playing with computers as children makes for better programmers as adults, she says. "I'm never going to be as good a programmer as a kid who started at 12, because I don't have the same desire to go after those programming skills." Young students often outstrip their teachers' skills in programming, instructors report — something many teachers and parents find nerveracking.

John Brown, computer instructor at the Capital Children's Museum in Washington, D.C., says: "This is what education is supposed to be about, isn't it? We aren't here to teach them what to think — we're here to give them the tools so they can figure things out for themselves."

Ms. Blank agrees with this, adding, "Child's play is

'This is what education is supposed to be about, isn't it? We aren't here to teach children what to think — we're here to give them the tools so they can figure things out for themselves.'

— John Brown, computer instructor adult's work. We're forming real problem solvers here — people who can break a problem down into its component parts, and think it through logically."

But the computer's ability to reinforce logical thinking does not mandate that one be placed in every classroom, she says. "Buying computers begs the real question of what the curriculum should be," she comments. "The computer is one of the very few machines ever invented without a specific purpose in mind. First, you should decide what you want to teach; then, you can see how the computer can help you teach it."

Finding these creative uses is the area where Mr. Uveges thinks his pupils will do best in the future. "In most jobs, you will need to at least know the capacity of the computer — the way an executive needs to know the capacity of his graphics department or his typing pool."

"But what I want to know is: What will happen to the study of philosophy when these computer 'high wires' get to it? What will happen to the field of graphics when someone who has been playing around with computers all his life enters it?"

"Right now, anybody can make a good payroll program, but what's going to happen when they apply computers to fields which have been untouched by them so far? That's what I think is exciting."

Adopt-A-Cat month sponsored by rescue society

It is the event of the year on the cat calendar, a time when fortune shines on the feline and cat lovers go all out for their furry, finicky friends.

It is Adopt-A-Cat Month at animal shelters nationwide and the "Cats Paw" Rescue Society is taking part in the special annual effort to find good homes for cats.

The country's leading cat citizen, the cat with the clout, tv's Morris the 9-Lives Cat, is pulling strings for his less fortunate feline friends as national spokescat for Adopt-A-Cat Month. The cat cause is now in its ninth year, sponsored by 9-Lives Cat Food for The American Humane Association and more than 700 animal shelters around the country, including the "Cats Paw" Rescue Society.

Nationally, more than eight million cats are left homeless and taken in by shelters every year. While some people may not readily associate June with cats, there is a strong reason for focusing on felines now. Spring is the peak season for homeless cats, bringing in large numbers to shelters, adding to the many shelter cats usually available for adoption. The shelter hopes Morris' pet project, Adopt-A-Cat Month, will bring in equal numbers of cat lovers.

"Anytime is a good time to adopt a cat, but June is probably the best time because there are so many cats in need of homes," said Betty Hudson of the "Cats Paw" Rescue Society.

"The fact that a cat was once a stray doesn't mean he or she won't make a good household pet. Cats adjust very easily and prefer the comforts of home. After all, Morris himself came from a shelter like ours."

Betty Hudson also asks that prospective adopters keep in mind what it means to be a good cat owner. While cats are basically independent, requiring little care, they do demand regular feeding and attention to grooming and health care, including visits to the veterinarian.

To help promote contented cats and cat owners, the "Cats

Paw" Rescue Society including the popular celebrity cat, an Morris Method book of adoption certificate cat care, a "paw-to- and 9-Lives Cat Food graphed" letter for the coupons.

Every 'bit' helps: beginner's computer guide

By Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Are you put off by input? Do disk drives make you dizzy? Do modems give you migraines?

If you have these symptoms, watch out! You may be suffering from "computer illiteracy," a mysterious malady of relatively recent origin that rarely strikes anyone under the age of 30. Left untreated, the consequences of this dread disease are, well — dare we say it? — terminal.

But don't despair, you're not alone. Last year millions of Americans sought cures for computer illiteracy. Their remedies ranged from the commonplace — hanging out at the growing number of computer stores or taking cram courses in basic computer literacy at community colleges, libraries and even museums — to the exotic — combining sun and study at Club Med resorts and adult computer camps or vacationing at computer-controlled Walt Disney World Epcot Center in Florida.

Choosing the proper prescription depends on the individual, according to Rachelle

Heller and Dianne Martin, two Maryland-based computer scientists. These instructors and authors, both 39, represent a new kind of practitioner: the gentle guide who diagnoses and helps overcome computer shock and network neurosis.

The two women define computer literacy in terms of a "comfort level." Heller explains: "The person who is a laboratory scientist needs a different kind of computer literacy than an elementary school teacher or a parent or a newspaper reporter. Computer literacy is what you need to know to feel comfortable in your daily life."

Not surprisingly, what you need to know to feel comfortable is increasing. "Ten or 15 years ago," Martin points out, "computers were the domain of the technological elite. Now, the average person comes in contact with computers, or the effects of computers, perhaps 50 times in a single day — at the gas station or bank, in the grocery store and office, at home. Today, computers are for the people. Everyone needs some level of literacy."

Fine, but how does the beginner begin? Often a person's first thought is to wander into one of the proliferating number of computer stores displaying and selling personal computers — so-called "microprocessors" that can be programmed for a variety of applications, from preparing household budgets and income taxes to carrying out inventories for small businesses or playing video games.

"Visiting a computer store first may be about the worst thing a computer 'illiterate' can do," Heller opines. "What happens? The individual who is already feeling intimidated by computers is either approached by a hard-sell computer salesman — an expert who speaks some strange language filled with words like bit, byte, ROM and RAM — or he's mobbed by the 'skinned-knee' crowd, kids who are right at home working at a computer terminal. Either situation simply turns up the anxiety level."

Instead, Heller suggests an approach that is "user-friendly" — a term applied to a computer system that is easy and non-threatening to use and understand.

In the past year, for instance, Heller and Martin have taught a one-day computer literacy course, offered every few months, for the Smithsonian Institution Resident Associate Program. The course is held in the National Museum of Natural History, where participants on their way to the computer revolution pass through halls filled with nature's wonders.

In this "out-of-context, non-traditional setting," Heller says, people feel more at ease. A recent course attracted some 450 people, mostly over the age of 30, including attorneys, accountants, bankers, economists, artists, writers, physicians, secretaries, homemakers, teachers and even a special agent from the FBI.

The Smithsonian course is similar to those offered across the nation by community colleges, libraries, computer clubs, some commercial enterprises and the adult-education programs of colleges, universities and recreation centers.

Most courses explain the basic principles and terminology of computers, discuss applications and explore social and ethical concerns. Some even teach basic programming. At least one public-broadcasting station, WETA-TV in Washington, D.C., is running a 23-week course in basic computer literacy, which viewers can take for credit through local colleges. As an added bonus, each college offers "hands-on" time in the school's computer facilities.

More exotic — and more expensive — introductions also are available. Club Med, a company that offers pre-packaged week-long getaways at various "villages" in tropical locations, has equipped several of its resorts with personal computers and instructors.

From Connecticut to California, adults also have their very own computer camps, a luxury formerly reserved for precocious kids. And virtually all large children's camps now promote computer instruction as a prime selling point in their ads.

For the whole computer-curious family, there is Epcot Center, the newest Walt Disney venture, adjacent to the Magic Kingdom in Florida's Walt Disney World.

"It's fair to say there wouldn't be an Epcot Center without computers," Louis H. Kompare, corporate manager for scientific systems at Epcot, declares. "Computers are behind-the-scenes and on-the-scenes at Epcot, controlling everything from security and sprinkling systems to rides and restaurant reservations."

But these computers have that old Disney magic. Many of Epcot's estimated 20 million visitors this year will see the impressively vast central computer facility in action — with a few surprises added. Or they may learn about the workings and applications of computers by "playing" one of the many "games" — all of which are actually sophisticated touch-sensitive television screens, totally computer-controlled with nary a keyboard in sight. "Most guests don't realize they've come in contact with a computer," Kompare says.

Epcot does indeed have the most "user-friendly" computers in the world. Throughout the 260-acre park, visitors line up early at the 29 terminals of the WorldKey Information Service, computer-controlled television screens that — at the touch of a finger — provide full-motion video, audio and text information about the park's attractions, special events, hotels and restaurants, this in English or Spanish with French and German to be added soon. Developed by the Bell System in a joint project with Walt Disney World, the unique information system is still experimental but could soon find wider use.

Of course, none of these gentle introductions will make you a computer expert overnight, but they may be all you need to reach your "comfort level." If more is called for, the next step, Heller says, "is to find a friend and visit a computer store for some hands-on experience." Martin advises, "Look around, see what's available, try some out." Dozens of brands are now on the market, ranging in price from under $100 to $6,000 and up. Many people prefer to build their own systems by mixing components from various firms.

Nor is there a lack of reading material. Many newspapers and magazines feature columns on the latest computer developments. Scores of new book titles have been published within the past year; more than 2,500 titles are now on the market. One large bookstore chain reports that computer books are "second only to romances" in popularity.

Among the books most often recommended for novices are Computers for Everybody (Dillithium Press, 1983), The Beginner's Guide to Computers (Addison-Wesley Publishing Co., 1982), The Personal Computer Book (Prelude Press, 1982) and Bits 'n Bytes About Computing: A Computer Literacy Primer (Computer Science Press, 1982).

The hardest step to take on the road to computer literacy is the first one, Heller and Martin acknowledge. In their work, they meet people who feel alienated and isolated by computers, some who believe that computers have gained control of their lives and others who are downright hostile, believing that computers will take over their jobs.

"People have endowed the computer with a mystical, godlike quality," Martin says, "but it really is nothing more than a 'dumb tool.' We try to assure people that a computer is no more intelligent than a wooden pencil. It does exactly what it is told to do — by you."

One thing to remember: There is no escaping the computer revolution, so you might as well join it. "Just think about the computer," muses Dr. Uta Merzbach, who, as curator of mathematics at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, is in charge of the world's largest and most comprehensive collection of computing devices.

"It took 250 years from the time man first described the notion of a mechanical desk calculating machine until it became widely used," she says. "In contrast, in less than 40 years, the computer has gone from a concept to a part of everyone's life. Few other technological developments in the history of mankind have had this kind of impact on daily life." Yes, computers are here to stay.

Lecture on aging

What happens to an individual's thinking process and emotions when he or she grows old?

How does a family and its older loved one cope when that loved one must go to a nursing home?

These are some of the questions that will be addressed at a lecture entitled "Aging" sponsored by New England Memorial Hospital on Thursday, June 9, at 7 p.m.

The last program of the 1983 NEMH Lecture Series, the lecture will be given by Dr. Edward Moses, staff psychiatrist of the NEMH human services department.

The program will be held in the hospital auditorium and a $2 admission fee will be collected at the door.

For more information, contact the health education department, NEMH, at 665-1740, ext. 426.

If your car buzzes, you're in reverse!

One of the earliest state laws governing the use of an automobile is credited to Connecticut. It limited urban speed to 12 miles an hour and country driving to 15.

That was in 1901 and legislators in the 50 states have been extremely productive ever since.

"Some 50,000 pieces of legislation are introduced every two years that impact directly or indirectly on the production, sales, servicing, driving and other uses of cars, trucks and buses," says Charles L. Spilman, Director of State Relations for the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association (MVMA).

That amount of attention given the motor vehicle industry by some 7,500 legislators in capitols across the nation represents about a fourth of all the bills inroduced during the two-year term timetable followed by most of the states.

"Fortunately, the majority of those 50,000 bills don't become law," Spilman reports. "For example, there was the California legislator of the Seventies who sought a ban on the internal combustion engine from the environs of Los Angeles. It would have paralyzed the city.

"In another state, a lawmaker was nearly hit by a small car he did not see. He introduced a bill requiring a 70-inch flagpole for all cars less than 54 inches high. The pole was to support a 100 square-inch pennant. It never flew."

Those examples are hardly typical of legislative activity. More to the point, there is deep concern about highway safety and environmental quality. Clean air gets attention, especially since the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has designated areas in 28 states and the District of Columbia for vehicle emissions inspection programs.

Another environmental debate centers on noise pollution. "Lawmakers generally do not regard cars as a major noise problem except when they become a nuisance problem through misuse — like tire or brake squeal," Spilman says. He adds that car noise really does not require governmental rule making.

"The market place commands quiet motoring and the manufacturer who produces a noisy product won't be producing it very long — especially in this day of in-the-car stereophonic sound," Spilman says.

A handful of states have considered legislation to restrict car sizes, but the demand for fuel economy has forced manufacturers to focus on smaller cars, eliminating the need for any legislation.

What may be good for one state doesn't mean instant adoption by others. Some examples:

All states plus the District of Columbia specify license plate dimensions of 6 by 12 inches. That's where similarity stops. Thirty-two states insist on two plates. Nineteen states require a rear tag only.

No-fault insurance is the law in 21 states.

Twenty-seven states will only buy vehicles made in America for their own fleets.

Twenty-four states require an odometer reading on a title or a title application when ownership changes.

Seventeen states say babies and tots must wear restraint systems in vehicles — and the list is growing.

And here are a few more that never reached the statute stage:

In Iowa, a bill would have limited vehicle ownership to one per household.

Five states turned down proposals to make headlights glow whenever windshield wipers ran.

New York State silenced a buzzer that sounded off at speeds over 55 mph.

Three states tried for a buzzer whenever the car was in reverse gear.

"We've come a long way," reminds Spilman. "Consider a turn of the century proposal by a Pennsylvania farm group that thought automobile drivers should fire a Roman candle every mile — just to make sure there were no horses on the road ahead."

Accidental death rate lowest recorded

The estimated death rate from accidents for 1982 is the lowest on record. A dramatic 10 percent drop in the death toll from motor vehicle accidents accounted in large part for the sharp decrease in mortality from accidents, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians.

Accidents caused an estimated 95,500 deaths in the United States in 1982, about 3,500 fewer than in 1981. The provisional mortality rate from accidents last year was 41.3 per 100,000 population, compared with 43.2 for 1981.

Motor vehicle accident fatalities in 1982 declined by about 5,000 to an estimated 46,500. This is the lowest annual mortality from motor vehicle accidents since 1975, the year when the mandatory lower speed limits were being strictly enforced throughout the nation. Preliminary data indicate that the death rate per 100 million miles traveled reached a record low of 3.0 in 1982.

Public accidents, other than those involving motor vehicles, accounted for 20,000 deaths in 1982, about 1,000 more than in the previous year. The number of job-related fatalities dropped by about 400 to a low of 11,800; approximately 3,600 of these deaths are included in the estimated 46,500 motor vehicle fatalities in 1982. Deaths from injuries in and about the home remained at the low of 21,000 estimated for 1981.

According to Metropolitan's records, about 900 persons in the United States lost their lives in catastrophes (accidents taking five or more lives) in 1982. This death toll was about 25 percent higher than that in 1981. There was a significantly heavier loss of life from cataclysms (tornadoes, floods, mud slides, etc.) and from civil aviation, military aviation, and motor vehicle catastrophes. On the other hand, catastrophes in mines and quarries, water transportation, and fires were each responsible for fewer deaths in 1982 than in the previous year.

Accidents in civil aviation caused more than one third of all catastrophic deaths in 1982 and cataclysms accounted for about one-fifth. Fires and accidents involving motor vehicles were each responsible for one-eighth of the catastrophic deaths, while one-tenth were attributed to military aviation accidents.

During 1982 there were five major catastrophes, each of which caused 25 or more fatalities; in the aggregate they resulted in 325 deaths. The worst disaster of the year occurred on July 9 in Kenner, La., when a scheduled airliner crashed into a suburban residential area minutes after taking off from New Orleans International Airport during a severe thunderstorm. It plowed through several houses, setting them and others ablaze. All 146 persons on board and eight others on the ground were killed, the second highest death toll in the nation's aviation history.

A second civil aviation disaster occurred on January 13 in Washington, D.C., when a jetliner taking off from National Airport in a snowstorm crashed into a bridge during rush hour, struck several vehicles on the bridge, and plunged into the icy Potomac River, killing 74 of 79 persons on board and four persons on the bridge.

There were two natural disasters in 1982. On January 3-5, one of the most destructive rainstorms of modern times swept mud slides and raging floods across northern California, claiming approximately 36 lives. On April 2, an outbreak of 56 tornadoes throughout Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri, and northern Texas resulted in about 30 deaths.

The fifth major disaster in 1982 occurred on March 19 in northern Illinois. A military tanker jet exploded during a thunderstorm and plunged from a height of 13,000 feet into a snowy field, scattering wreckage over four miles and killing all 27 persons aboard.

Steam heating systems need care

Hissing, clanking, banging, groaning, wheezing: the all-too-familiar sounds to which users of steam heat have grown accustomed. Present, too, are the difficulties in controlling heat flow, or at times in getting any heat at all from the radiators. Yet the steam system need not be a source of constant annoyance. Like an old car, with proper maintenance it can provide good and dependable service.

There are ways to avoid the clanking and banging caused usually by the steam colliding with water. If, as is most common, your radiators have only one pipe leading in, both the steam and the water formed when the steam cools compete for passage within that pipe — the steam trying to rush in, the water trying to flow back to the boiler.

Houses settle over time, often causing the radiators to tilt in such a way that water is trapped within. The force of the impact of the arriving steam will create the loud bang. As a result, radiators must be slightly tilted towards the pipe, allowing the water to run back. Shim or prop up the opposite side if necessary.

Because both the steam and condensate use the same opening, it is important that the aperture remain fully open. Do not try to modulate your heat by closing down the valve partway. This merely narrows the opening, and often results instead in trapping water within the radiator. The valve should be either completely on or completely off, note, however, that as radiators get older they will often no longer seal completely and may need further maintenance.

The modulation of the temperature should be made at the vent, the small cylindrical or conical object usually attached to the opposite side of the radiator. Adjustable vents are readily available and permit you to zone each radiator separately. In addition to radiator vents your service person should check the main vent, located near the boiler, for proper operation.

It is important to periodically check to see that the vents are working properly. When the steam approaches, you should first hear a small click as the vent closes, allowing no more air to come out into the room. Another way to check is to unscrew the vent and blow through it; if you are unable to do, the vent needs replacing.

A malfunctioning vent can result in the constant hissing — and increasing heating bills. The hissing shows that steam is escaping into the room. This lost water vapor must be replaced in the heating system, and is, by cold water which must then be heated up to steam temperature. An idea of how much is being lost this way can often be noted by how frequently you must add water to the boiler.

Careful attention to the water level in the boiler is important especially if there are leaks to the system you are unable to trace. The proper level of the water in the sight-glass tube is a matter of some debate, but half-way up is a reasonable compromise. In the case of tankless water heaters the water level should be slightly higher to cover the internal coil.

Rust-colored water gives an indication of sediment buildup which can result in decreased efficiency of the system. Once a month drain a half gallon from the boiler by opening the low water cut-off drain valve. Then, replace the water through the inlet valve on the cold water feed line to the boiler. It is important for safety to keep the sediment from interfering with the operation of the low water cut-off. If you have any questions about the location of valves, ask your service person.

Don't paint the radiators; paint absorbs some of the heat. Similarly, dust can obstruct the heat from flowing into the room.

JOB MART

"There's no business like our business."

Lenny and Nancy Ayner
Norwood Franchisees

"...because we can make money and have fun doing it. Ever since we got a White Hen Franchise five years ago, we've been making more money and getting a kick out of doing it as a family. Even the kids pitch in! You ought to see if you can qualify and start making money for yourself for a change."

In times like these, with the threat of layoffs and employee dissatisfaction, more and more families are discovering the joy and the wisdom of working for themselves. White Hen Pantry is a growing convenience food store chain and we're looking for responsible people who can run their own business with the advantage of our corporate expertise.

A White Hen Franchise offers you a guaranteed annual income, a complete training program, a complete store equipment and operating package with store counseling, business insurance and advertising. To find out if you qualify, call (617) 395-6701, Monday-Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

By William Pacino

Lace the facts, spring is long gone. It's summertime and that means visiting someplace new. Of course, we have all kinds of places for you to try out.

Ride the rails

June marks the beginning of the 3rd season of family fun for visitors to Edaville Railroad, one of the leading specialized attractions in the Northeast.

Edaville offers a fascinating variety of antique steam transportation exhibits to look at and ride on.

A series of special events is planned for this summer. June 11 and 12 5th Annual Bluegrass Festival, June 18 and 19 Rail Fans' Days, July 16

Antique Steam, Gas and Machinery Meet, August 13 Great Hot Air Balloon Race.

Of course, throughout the summer, the main attraction at Edaville Railroad will continue.

The working steam trains will still chug along the 5½ mile track that winds through Cranberry Country and around Cranberry Lake. This year something new has been added. A chance to stop off and take a ride on the new paddle boat.

At Edaville, senior citizens' discounts apply on all days. Children are admitted at half the adult fare.

Edaville Railroad is located off Route 495 on Route 58, South Carver, Mass. Tel. no.

866-4526.

Good Words for Boston

The Statewide "Good Words for Boston" campaign is now in full swing. The top prize is $5,000 for the person who comes up with a slogan of five words or less that captures the spirit and character of Boston by the closing date of August 18. All Bay State residents are eligible to participate in the contest. For more information, write Good Words Contest, Box 490, Boston 02199.

MUSIC

Mishawum Choral Society

A 20th Anniversary POPS concert will be presented by the Mishawum Choral Society at the St. Charles Auditorium, Main St., Woburn on Thursday, June 9, at 8 PM. This special anniversary concert by the 65-voice chorus will consist of classical, sacred, and popular songs. Selections include: Ave

Maria, The Lord is My Shepherd, Just a Closer Walk with Thee, medleys from Man of La Mancha and Show Boat, music of Lennon & McCartney and Sigmund Romberg. Refreshments will be served during intermission. Tickets are $2.50 and will be available at the door or from Society members.

Pickering Wharf Concerts

Following last year's successful concert program, Pickering Wharf in Salem will host a 1983 schedule of free concerts. Every Wednesday evening, from 7 to 9, starting on June 1 and concluding on September 14, Pickering Wharf will come alive with performances by popular area bluegrass, Dixieland, contemporary, country rock, and folk blues bands.

Everyone is invited to attend these lively evening performances. For further information, contact Debbie Carozzi, at 745-9540, Wilder-Manley, Pickering Wharf, Salem 01970.

You don't need a wool blanket to visit the Edaville Railroad during the summer, and we're sure Nureyev has a Good Word for Boston, but when you think of things to do, remember COMING ATTRACTIONS. We are always ready to try something different. You can get our attention by writing, care of this local newspaper and telling us all we need to know.
